Hi John,
MW DX here in S. Florida is not very good. Using my Terk passive loop to try and get some better reception. Strangely, I was finding my old GE SuperRadio III with the loop better than the CCrane SW/AM with the double dipole built in.
What new equipment have you received lately?
Hope the DX is good,
Take care,
Bob
P.S. When is the next time you will be in Atlanta?

More people are starting to have strange deaths around obama than happened around clinton, if obama keeps going, he will take clintons record!

Remember Vince Foster? Seems like just significant knowledge of

A friend of mine who works for an outfit that picks up all kinds of donated materials just brought over an Allied model 2660 portable shortwave, destined to be scrapped.

He keeps an eye out for SW stuff for me.

The radio is virtually mint, works well, and... it was free!

Here is what one looks like:

You can listen off a computer connected to the net without buying one,

The only mystery is what makes a person become a birthtard. I doubt

A genetic defect?

A laptop with built in wifi will only be able to use the wifi card with a wifi router, if you go to a coffee shop with wifi, your wifi radio will work there, otherwise, you will need a wifi rougher/switch etc.

1984, by George Orwell, has actually been turned into a game plan with the government is executing, with amazing speed, efficiency, and die results for us!

You should be able to pick up a wifi router for $5 bucks or so at your local goodwill store -- I have a box full of 'em, and constantly are setting them up for friends and people I run into.

Thanks RHF. I am looking for other users' experience. My unit comes from Radio Labs, with the filter upgrade (their so-called, "Clearmod" modification).
The difference when I switch from AM wide to narrow is almost always inaudible and, for all practical purposes, does not make any difference without detuning the radio in slow mode. I wonder if owners of the stock radio experience the same.
(The Radio Labs people think this is the way the radio is supposed to work, which I found puzzling and surprising)

Clocks be damned.. if the idiots just let the line frequency free run, it will mess up the entire grid. You'll have places where the grid interconnects that will have wild voltage fluctuations due to phasing issues (a mere 180 degree phase shift would cause a major problem, since the the two feeds would cancel each other out completely. I guess the "engineers" have forgotten about the reason that our 60 hertz line frequency has been so exact over such a long time. It HAS to be to make an intertied grid function.

Sadly, every country has kooks of various types, even Canada. Whatever causes birthtardism is apparently affecting susceptible people up there too. You aren't alone, but hopefully, you can maybe be helped someday.

There is a mass exodus at this time. Seems like they would have figured out something had to be done, politicians still trying to run the same-old-same-old.

Someone needs to ask them how they think it is all working out for them.

The cell phone is the reason CB and ham radio has fallen ...

Regards,

CB's been dead a lot longer than there have been cell phones. The last low sunspot cycle killed it. Nobody wanted to talk local on it anymore, only DX. The CB "craze" was not all that long, and lasted basically only from about 1975 to 79 or so. Sure, there are still CB's around, and people still use them, but only about 1% as many as did in the 70's.

Ham radio isn't dead, either. It's fallen off some, but only because the young people today don't want to work for anything.

Cell phones are handy devices, but far from perfect. Cell dropouts are far more annoying than signal fade. And you ever tried calling overseas on your cell phone? It's still damned expensive.

Besides... what's the fun of poking a few buttons and letting some computer do all the work? It's much more fun to have the sense of accomplishment one gets from using one's own equipment and skills to make a DX contact? Some contacts halfway around the world have been made on as little as 5W (SSB) and 2W (CW).

It's understandable that the average person would not recognize the word, but I can't think of a more common word to us. It's power transmission terminology for the interfaces between power distribution systems on the "grid", which has hundreds of power generator stations all over the country (plus Canada and Mexico) that must all be properly synchronized in order to all be online simultaneously.

"Wikipedia Meaning and Definition on 'Intertie'

Electric power transmission or "high voltage electric transmission" is the bulk transfer of electrical energy, from generating power plants to substations located near to population centers. This is distinct from the local wiring between high voltage substations and customers, which is typically referred to as electricity distribution. Transmission lines, when interconnected with each other, become high voltage transmission networks. In the US, these are typically referred to as "power grids" or just "the grid", while in the UK the network is known as the "national grid." North America has three major grids: The Western Interconnection; The Eastern Interconnection and the Electric Reliability Council of Texas (or ERCOT) grid.

Historically, transmission and distribution lines were owned by the same company, but over the last decade or so many countries have liberalized the electricity market in ways that have led to the separation of the electricity transmission business from the distribution business."

You are perfect example of a lazy arsehole who can't/won't download the fraud and examine it, or read what experts say ... it starts with the 9 layers, goes into cut and paste text, then there is the fact it bears no official seal, then there is the fact that they didn't even have that phony green paper in the 1960's when the old xerox copiers were about that only created negatives of the originals ...

I think you meant to say generation and distribution businesses...

they've added a third business to the mix. The billing/invoicing is, at least here, is done by a third company.

the generation company first sold the distribution rights, but kept on making the same money as previously. The distribution people added their costs and profits to to the bill and passed it on to you.

the electrical bill we pay here now contain the costs and profits of three companies. Some months, the surcharges are greater than the consumption costs. Eight cents a KW hour seems like a bargain, but it comes out to 17 cents a KW after the surcharges.

as in the oil racket, the politicians are owned by these people.

CB is still alive in trucking, but with all the illegal indians from mexico, illegals from india, ... so. America, etc. it is falling off there, and no one will talk to them, not even other truckers.

For the first time, I am seeing many trucks on the freeway without CB antennas -- only external cell/GPS antennas.

Amateur radio is OK, however, it is a far cry from the 1970's. Although there is a lot of spanish speakers coming on the bands, and foreign stations are there in numbers, USA tickets are down, and the old farts who are still alive are as cranky and alzheimers ridden as hell.

Truth is, except for a relative handful, most I have attempted to chew the old rag with are complete morons and idiots ... I do a couple of weekly nets, except for that, they can go talk to other morons ...

Most think that the ham ticket they got is the equiv of a Ph.D. I got the ticket so I could build BIG AMPS and burn the ether.

Today, most couldn't build a damn crystal radio ... seem to have very little knowledge of electronics, didn't even string up their own antenna, and are so politically correct it gags me to listen to the queers! And, the majority are only interested in VHF, possibly UHF ... you find a few on SHF and damn few on HF.

I disagree with you, my cell, phone with a foreign calling card, lets me call sweden, where my niece is, for a dime a minute, we can chat for hours on less than I pay for a good pound of coffee! I can't remember having to pay over .12 a minute for a calling card anywhere I have ever called, lately, but I always am checking prices for the family ... it's easy to pay a lot more if you don't do some shopping.

But, on the other hand, my SDR rig cost thousands (and I got a good deal on it!) ... and my state-of-the-art 4KW amp was a pretty penny ... you can chat a long, long time on a cell phone, and buy a lot of them, for that, even if you call russia quite frequently!

HAM/AMATEUR radio has a habit of becoming VERY expensive ... if you can't tell it is dying, I just don't know what to tell you ... its' technology just doesn't interface with the rest of the world, or even the people in it, anymore.

Morons, such as him, I just love to watch them attempt to interact with others, in a meaningful way(s.) I mean, it never works out, but you die laughing at watching them ...

I find wiki great, with it was around when I was a kid. I had to spend hours reading encyclopedias ... I have quite a fondness for wikileads, also.

I often wonder, do others realize most of the data on wikileaks is on foreign servers and is available to THE WHOLE WORLD?

I mean, it pretty much tells you what is going on when they have to block the people they are working for from knowing what they are doing, while the rest of the world already knows! ROFLOL they've added a third business to the mix. The billing/invoicing is, at least here, is done by a third company.

I think you meant to say generation and distribution businesses...

the generation company first sold the distribution rights, but kept on making the same money as previously. The distribution people added their costs and profits to to the bill and passed it on to you.

Wasn't me saying it... notice it was in quotes, and attributed to Wikipedia.

I remember back in the bad old days, we paid 3.2 cents per kWh (of course, we complained.... :) ) in Oregon. This was because we bought directly from the Bonneville Power Administration, as they own (or at least owned) all the hydropower generators in the state.

This may be more of a function of the AM station's transmitter. Try tuning off by 1 KHz so you get some sideband splatter. Can you hear cymbals and sibilance, or do you hear crackling and popping? If it's the latter, the station isn't transmitting any highs. See if the bandwidth selector makes a difference while off tuned a little.

I have an NEC Multisync 22'' flat screen computer for my computer.When/if that kicks the bucket, I will go to one of the Cowboy Maloney stores around here (probally the original store on Harding down, according to http://www.tvpredictions.com.

I will intertie them with an HDMI (High Definition Multimedia Interface)

Hey, it isn't my fault that SW has gone to the dogs, sure you want to find an "evil" to blame for it, but it ain't me. Look what the shortwave posts these days are about, there is nothing of a nature which is interesting, and that is because of the broadcasts -- if you think USA news has been become baby pablum, just check out canada, britian, australia, etc.

Plus, most are listening on tinny antennas (apparently) and only catching the big flame throwers.

Religious broadcasts? JUST SAY NO!

I fully admit, the net, talk radio, my cell phone, hell, even the old CB takes up more of my listening time. Plus, while listening on the net, YOU ARE RIGHT, I can surf on the other of my two screens.

Goggle? Name a better search engine ... but then, most think they can use google -- it is obvious, they can't ... and, wrong again, I use startpage which just returns google results, but doesn't act as a CIA spy ... like usual, even the basic premises stated are off, so, naturally, everything built upon them is/are basically worthless ...

Don't hang symbols in effigy of the real problem(s) which you personify.

I usually have a chat with the aussie boys, two to three times a week, on CH. 39 USB/SSB ... running a simple 1/2 wave vertical antenna (no groundplane radials) made in italy, 40 Ft. at the base in the air, with 400W.

I have a set of stacked 5 element beams, made in the 1970's and restored a few years ago, but I have to go tear down 75 ft. tower and beams and bring it here, to put up. However, I am having a hard time finding persons to take it down! Once that puppy is up I will be the only station heard in australia ...

Can you imagine what I would sound like there with the beams up and 4KW Amp stuck in the line? <giggle>

I'd imagine they would think me their next door neighbor, at least a local ...

Maybe you should be more concerned that Melson is going to testify and not take the fall. Which is on topic for this thread. You seem to have a fascination with defending Obama's qualifications. If he's qualified he doesn't need defending. You protest to much.

Yanno'? I see political correctness. I see people not saying shit when they have a mouthful. I see the attempted renaming of negro to black, of homosexual to gay, of mentally retarded to mentally challenged, of tax to fee/fine/charge/etc. ...

And, I see the idiots who live in fantasy worlds. I see people who think they are going to change what people think by changing a word, or two ...

But, mostly, I see a lot of morons.

If the streets were littered with guns, I don't see much of a problem, other than with children who have not had training on how to properly handle them, or are too young to have them.

However, the people who come across them, not what is a whole other story. It is absolute fact to me, the guns are NOT the problem, the people ARE!

Truth is, whatever you do with those guns, you are always going to have those defective people -- and knives, clubs, bows and arrows, pipe/shrapnel-bombs, etc.

I'd worry more about plans to deal with the people, the fix, and the answer, lies there ... makes reagan shutting down the nut farms in California that much more of an obvious crime.

If the streets were littered with guns, I don't see much of a problem, other than with children who have not had training on how to properly handle them, or are too young to have them.

However, the people who come across them, now, what is a whole other story. It is absolute fact, at least to me, the guns are NOT the problem, the people ARE!

Truth is, whatever you do with those guns, you are always going to have those defective people -- and knives, clubs, bows and arrows, pipe/shrapnel-bombs, etc. And, of course, illegal aliens are a real problem, as are the drug lords minions on our soil ... etc.

I'd worry more about plans to deal with the people. The fix, and the answer, lies there ... makes reagan shutting down the nut farms in California that much more of an obvious crime.

As always, I take a feeling of security from being armed with a weapon, having my neighbors armed with weapons, my friends, my family and all sane Americans -- the criminals will always have guns -- that is simply what they do ...

I would make gun training part of high school curriculum. I would encourage all Americans to own guns, both for protecting their personal safety and to protect those around them. I think that is simply part of our American heritage, and why this was, once, a GREAT and safe place to reside.

Seriously. I've no interest in racist hate speech, conspiracy theories (either of the leftist "Bush did 9/11" sort or the rightist "Obama isn't an American" sort) or any of that. I want to read (and maybe occasionally talk) about radio, mainly in the HF frequency range. I don't CARE if Mexicans are moving across the border, the government is covering up an alien spaceport at Area 51 or that some people are still so shocked about the balck man being elected President of the United States that they want to find a way to get him thrown out on a technicality. So cut it out.

There are still quite a few Hams in the Sierra Foothills and still a lot of Pick-Up Trucks with CB Antennas in the land where Cellphone Towers are few and far between.

Often the number of Hams doubles on the Weekends and a lot of Moto-Bike Riders still use CBs on their

2725. Latin American SW Logs Page Updated

The Latin American SW Logs page has been updated as of 30 June:

http://www.mcdxt.it/LASWLOGS.html

dxAce
Michigan
USA

Drake R7, R8, R8A and R8B
70' and 200' wires
GE SR I (2) and II

239 countries heard and 225 QSL'd (veried, for those in Glendale) using the NASWA Country List.

And, as always, don't let your children attend the Sullivan College of Technology & Design (Backwater U.).

They've hired at least one dufus who once claimed to have a PhD and lied about being arrested, and who knows, there may be more dufi there.

They also eat huge amounts of electricity... it's cheaper to run your air conditioner than a PDP television. In addition, PDP's are on their way out.
Think California already outlawed them (those dictator wannabes outlaw everything..) The newer LCD sets are much better, plus use only about 1/3 of the power that PDP's use. The real way to go is LED backlight. A bit more expensive to start out, but the savings on your power bill will make you a happy happy camper. Ours (52") draws around 60 watts vs. a PDP of the same size draws around 450 watts.

Indeed.

Actually, it's more of a term of endearment for toddlers/preschoolers, to differentiate them from school age children/tweens/teens (remember when a kid was a kid, and that until age 21?).

I use Google to read RRSW and lately all the newest postings are 2 days old. In other words, it takes 2 days for postings to appear. Do the rest of you have this problem or is it just a Google thing?

Someone should do a remake on that wonderful old tale, "A Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens!

It could use the internet as a platform for Ebenezer Scrooge. And, he could be a "bandwidth control freak", who pinched every byte and character of internet traffic!

Would certainly give a whole new generation a "Dickens of an experience" in literary exposure!

Hi Bob,
Here its the coldest winter for years - the Antarctic storms just keep sweeping through and my heating bill is horrendous.
DXing is never good in Montagu my home QTH. I await my next DXpedition to Seefontein on the Atlantic coast in September for some fireworks.
My GE SRIII is still doing sterling work in the kitchen, but it is not as good as my lovely Redsun RP2100 which is outstanding on MW AM band.
The other morning I got France Lille on 1377 over R. Free Africa in Mwanza Tanzania - a nice rare catch on the big Icom IC-7600. Nothing from the US though and very little from S. Amarica either.

I'm on the band every morning but little is coming through his winter.
I also enjoy my little ultralight Grundig G8 which is surprisingly good for its small size. I sold some equipment the other day and wanted to get the latest ultralight, but the old ball and chain went ballistic, so the buks had to go to the common fund.

Went to Atlanta last December, so another visit is not scheduled until next year. Got to be home next May to celebrate our 50th wedding anniversary.
Be well Bob and thanks for the call.

SSTV on 6930 kHz @ 0045 UTC. Sounds like Scottie 1 mode. Appeared to be an AM signal on the SDR display. Unidentified. Too weak to get any picture resolved. Was reported on 6925 kHz last night. Using MMSSTV program.

Handy Shortwave Chart

billmc@agora.rdrop.com

Band allocations and time zone conversions for the USA. Includes broadcast bands used outside the USA. For multi-use bands, primary usage is shown. Some stations operate outside official bands. Information is from Oct 2008 FCC rules and Sep 2009 NTIA manual, see Chapter 4 of:
http://www.ntia.doc.gov/osmhome/redbook/redbook.html

Please e-mail suggestions and corrections to billmc@agora.rdrop.com.

Phone line as SW antenna

Changes preceded by "|".

WARNINGS AND DISCLAIMERS

Connecting unapproved devices to phone lines may be illegal in your area.
Telephone lines present a potential shock hazard. Do not use this antenna for transmitting. Use at your own risk.

INTRODUCTION

This article describes how to use a phone line as a shortwave receiving antenna. Performance will vary depending on the kind of phone line you have. Overhead lines usually make okay antennas, while underground lines | usually don't. Phone lines carrying DSL service may be unsuitable because | DSL operates over a wide spectrum. A phone line antenna will generally pick up more power line noise than a dedicated antenna, so don't expect to | use it for DX work. Nevertheless, I found that it outperformed the | telescopic whip antennas built into many portables.

A reader sent in this suggestion: If you're concerned about connecting the phone line directly to the receiver, try wrapping the phone cord several times around the receiver's telescopic whip antenna instead.
Performance may not be as good as a direct connection, but it will probably be better than the whip antenna by itself.

Someone else wrote asking about lightning protection. I haven't thought much about it because thunderstorms are rare in my area. Most phone lines have lightning arrestors on them where they enter the house, but the lightning arrestors may pass enough energy during a lightning strike damage a receiver. My suggestion is to disconnect the antenna when not in use if you experience frequent thunderstorms.

HOW TO DO IT

The simplest connection is a single capacitor between the phone line and receiver. The capacitor eliminates all phone line voltages, including | ringing, so that they will not harm the receiver. The capacitor should
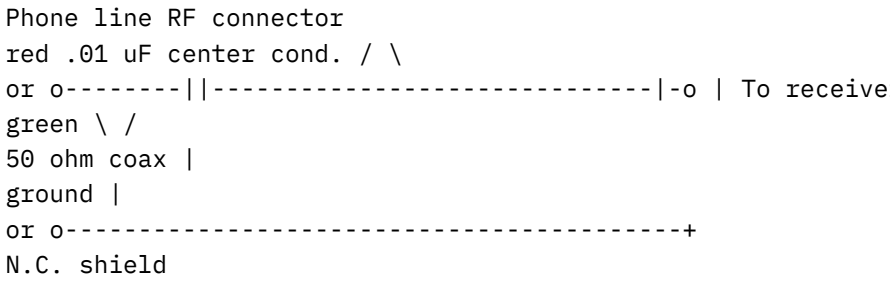
| be rated 250 volts or higher.



N.C. = no connect. I originally connected the phone line ground (yellow wire) to this terminal, but reception was better without it (if you do this, play it safe and put a .01 uF capacitor in series). If another ground is available, you can connect it to this terminal.

If you are picking up local AM or FM radio stations on the shortwave bands, it is likely that your receiver is overloaded. Inexpensive and portable receivers usually lack the filtering needed to eliminate this interference, but you can make your own filters. Filters can also be | purchased from shortwave dealers (see below for recommendations).

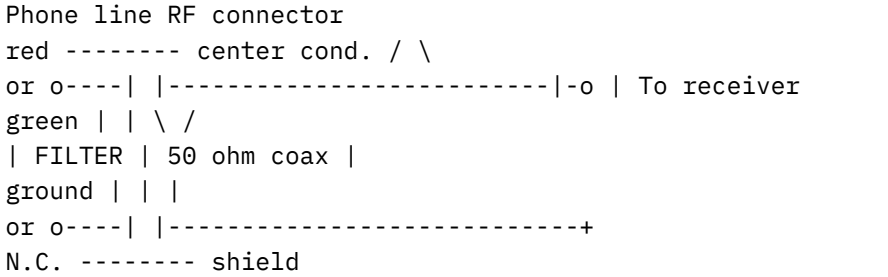
A high-pass filter can be used to remove signals below the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from local AM stations and presents a high impedance to the phone line at audio frequencies so that the phone line remains balanced.

A low-pass filter can be used to remove signals above the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from FM and TV stations, as well as VHF 2-way radio transmitters. If you use both filters, connect the output of the first filter to the input of the second (don't forget to connect their ground terminals together). It doesn't matter which filter is connected first.

These filters also work well with random wire antennas. Just connect the antenna in place of the phone line.

The filter(s) should be connected to the phone line in this manner:



| RECOMMENDED FILTERS
| If you don't want to make your own filters, the following have good | performance, are well-built and affordable:
| Model 400 BCB interference filter (3.5 MHz highpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#bcb

| Model 420 HF lowpass filter (30 MHz lowpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#3
| (scroll down a bit to see the model 420)
| If you have a random-wire antenna, the following unit will provide | impedance matching and lightning protection (connect antenna to 450-ohm | terminal):
| Model 182A beverage matching unit
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/reconly.html#Beverage Matching

FILTER PLANS

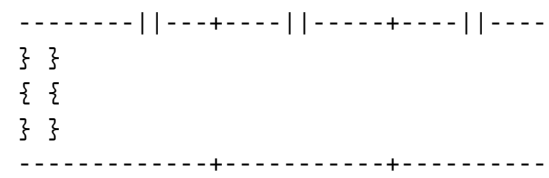
The original credit for the high-pass and low-pass filters goes to Paul Blumstein and John Shalamskas, respectively. Edited versions of their articles are included here:

Date: 09 Jan 91 00:54:08 GMT
From: paulb@harley.TTI.COM (Paul Blumstein)
Subject: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

The following ascii-schematic diagram is a high pass filter that will filter out Broadcast Band (MW) stations. I found it a great boon to my shortwave listening since local MW stations overload my ATS-803A front end & appear in SW, especially with a long antenna.

If you remember my antenna saga, I went from 50 feet to 150 feet & had overload problems causing me to cut back to 50 feet. (Even at 50 feet, I still have some MW interference). I took the advice of Gary Coffman and looked up filters in the ARRL Handbook. With the filter in place, I intend to try to increase my antenna length again.

Anywho, here is the filter, for interested parties.



The outer capacitors are 1500 pf ceramic disks.
The inner capacitor is 820 pf ceramic disk.
The squiggly things are coils (two total). Each one is 2.7 uh.
(a close value will do).

From: bill@videovax.tv.tek.com (William K. McFadden)
Subject: Re: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

I built the filter that Paul Blumstein posted recently and measured it on a gain-phase analyzer. Here are its characteristics:

100 kHz -120dB
500 kHz -68dB

1000 kHz -38dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2100 kHz -3dB

The source and load impedances were 50 ohms. Because the filter has five elements, the attenuation is 30dB per octave. The measurements confirmed this.

This filter seems to be a good compromise between interference attenuation and passband response. There is very little attenuation in the 120m band and above. It could use a little more attenuation at the upper end of MW, which could be done with more stages or a higher cutoff frequency. Alternatively, you could build two of these filters and put them in series. (Since two 1500pF capacitors in series are really 750pF, you could eliminate one cap.)

Just for fun, I put 470 ohms in series with the input to see how the filter performed with an antenna mismatch. The response was:

100 kHz -105dB
500 kHz -60dB
1000 kHz -35dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2300 kHz -3dB

These figures are normalized to the passband response of -15dB, which is due to the impedance mismatch between the source and load and would have been there without the filter. Hence, the filter works almost as well in spite of the mismatch, which is good news to those who use long-wire antennas.

From: johns@uhunix.uhcc.Hawaii.Edu (John Shalamskas)
Subject: Construction of filters for SW reception

Several people have asked for construction details of the filters I built for my DX-440.

The high-pass filter helped some, but in my location the VHF/UHF broadcasters are also causing problems. So, I dug out the ARRL handbook and chose a 7-element Chebyshev low-pass design that is -3 dB at 35 MHz, -20 dB at 43 MHz, and -50 dB at 64 MHz (all calculated; it works well in practice!)

LOW-PASS FILTER (Rejects FM, TV, etc.)

chassis ground

I had to do a little more improvising at this point. I used .33 uH instead of .36, and .66 uH instead of .42, but it works fine.

The 5-lug terminal strips were perfect for these circuits, since there are 4 lugs plus a grounded lug. All "ground" connections go to the lug that is mounted to the chassis, and the other 4 lugs are used for each of the connections on the signal line. One terminal strip is used per filter. Since both filters were necessary to clean up the hash, I am going to put them both into one box when I get the time.

signal in ------- filter 1 -------- filter 2 -------- signal out

There is no difference between ends. They are "bilateral" which means you can't possibly hook them up backwards. (In the above schematics, left and right ends are interchangeable.)

COIL WINDING

You can make the coils yourself using this formula:

L = 0.2 * B^2 * N^2 / (3B + 9A + 10C)

L is the inductance, in uH
A is the length of the coil, in inches
B is the mean diameter of the coil, in inches
C is the diameter of the wire, in inches
N is the number of turns

For small wire, you can assume C = 0.

PARTS SOURCE

Parts for the filters can be obtained from the following source:

Is there any reason they did not furnish any actual numbers/specifications ? Their website mentions something like a 'processor filter'(?) . This sounds sort of evasive as far as I'm concerned . And even Sangean doesn't have much information about the static or dynamic bandwih measurements . They must be hiding something .

RK,

If you have a Very W-I-D-E 'Wide' IF Filter +8 kHz and a not-so-wide 'Wide' IF Filter ~4 kHz you may NOT hear or detect too much difference between the two when it comes to AM-Mode Radio Reception.

However, If you have a Standard 'Wide' IF Filter
~5 kHz and a Narrow IF Filter -3 kHz you may well Hear a/r Detect some real difference between the two when it comes to AM-Mode Radio Reception.

What "kHz" and "Shape Factor" Rad-Labs 'claim' for their Wide and Narrow IF Filter in the Mod'ed Sangean ATS-909X Radio ?

Just for the heck of it, I hooked up an old dx390. The noise was ridiculous. But then, I now live in an area where all the lines are underground. And, when I think about it, I must be hooking up that receiver to hundreds, if not thousands of routers/switches/faxes/print-servers/etc.

So, I went and quickly bread boarded a high-voltage isolator which would pass rf and hooked it up to my powerline. It was even worse ...

Where do all these people live which can make use of these lines?

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

A few new QSLs to round out June 2011 -

PORTUGAL, RDP 9455, 0129 UTC, in 126 days by airmail for reception report in PP, sound recording and IRC plus followup in PP; also sked. Now SW is suspended, so maybe the last batch? (JENSEN-USA).

FRANCE/Sudan/Netherlands - Radio Dabanga, Hilversum, via Issoudun, France, 41m band, n/d card for RR in EE plus sound recording via email form in about 4 months after recent followup (JENSEN-USA).

DEMOCRATIC PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF KOREA, Voice of Korea, Pyongyang, 15180, two p/d cards (German, French) in 126 days by airmail in two separate plain brown kraft envelopes; for single airmail report in EE for EE BC (19 February 2011) + IRC & SWL card; also DPRK newspapers, philatelic order forms, VoK pin and pennant (JENSEN-USA).

I also hear tell that Radio Fly now has QSL cards in hand and may get them ready for post soon.

Happy July!

Hi Dave,

I have tried that and, as I said above, without detuning you would never know there is a different filter in there, but one should hear a difference when you switch from wide to narrow, without detuning. According to Radio Labs, they have used filter bandwidths of 4.5 KHz and 2 KHz for wide and narrow.
A 2 KHz filter should cripple audio fidelity noticeably (and reduce interference), but I am hearing no difference. I have had two other people listen independently and they say the same, so it is not just my ears. I have now read a couple of reviews elsewhere that indicate the bandwidth switch does very little (including the guys at Universal Radio, whom I telephoned), so it looks like a flaw this radio has, including the modified version.

Hi RHF,

Radio Labs claims they have used 4.5 KHz for wide and 2 KHz for narrow. As I said in my response to Dave, one should be able to hear the difference between these pretty easily (for reference, my Drake SW8 has 6, 4 and 2.4 KHz bandwidths, and one can hear the difference between all three pretty well, especially in going from the middle to the lowest bandwidth because the narrowest filter muffles the audio distinctly). I just wanted to hear about other users' experience, wether they have the stock or modified radio.

Thanks for your reply.

Hi, Peter, happy Independence Day!

No DRM - all I have is the Icom R75 RX. Not a big fan of DRM, although if the hobby goes solidly in that direction, I'll probably spring for one at some point.

My thinking, as well. Although, it looks as though DRM is backing

This his what happens when politicians replace people who actually know things.

For additional reference: FCC.

Anyone want to know what will happen to clocks if/when they quit trying to sync the grid?? Plug your digital clock into your UPS, and see how much time it gains or loses in just a few minutes... on one of my UPS's our alarm clock gains upwards of 4 minutes per hour.

Who is your ISP ? Google works fairly-- reliably for most of the time .

You can try this simple test I just thought of . A) Tune to a loud,stable AM-modulated station . B) Turn the SSB on . C) Play with USB/LSB setting . D) Detune the received frequency slightly ( no more than 1-2 KHz) ,so you hear the beat sound increasing or decrease in the pitch . E) Play with the wide/narrow setting . F) If the filters are really there- -the change must be very obvious .

Tune to a local AM/MW Radio Station that features Wide Ranging Audio "Music" and try your Filters. ~ RHF

I have a lot of very old wind up clocks that keep much better time than

I'm in total agreement. However, your basic computer UPS is not a precision instrument. They don't hold to 60 Hz, and don't even have sine wave output, so they do funny things to clocks that get their timing pulses from the line. It's just that they make a good example of what CAN happen when the power grid is no longer properly regulated.

I checked the clocks in my house. Only one clock runs off the power line, it has an internal quartz osc which keeps the time. Its' date of manufacture is 1992. The rest of my clocks are all battery clocks, they all have internal quartz osc. The clock in my computer uses an internal quartz time base. The clock in my HF rig uses a quartz time base. Obviously, the clocks in battery capable SW radios have quartz time bases.

This is a non-issue for me. I think you all should check before you jump to the conclusion this is going to be a problem for you.

Synchronous electric clocks are a thing of the past. I suspect if you can find them today, they would be the cheapest made, if they are even made anymore!

Chulu might have a problem with the draws full of old salvation army and goodwill clocks, I am sure he has.

But, for the rest of us, this might just be another replay of the non-issue of the 2000 computer date farce ... it really wasn't a hardware problem then ... a simple software fix took care of all problems ...

Look, I am all for investing in physical gold and/or other precious metals ...

But now what? You think I have room to start stocking barrels of oil, tritium, plutonium and on and on? I mean, sure the tritium and plutonium (uranium 235, etc.) is great, and fits into a small space, much more so then me storing drums of oil, but dude! When I have to take the barrels of oil and attempt to trade them for food, people are going to look at me like I am nuts!

And, the radioactive metals are not going to be much better. Right off the bat, I see a problem with the government wanting to know where I got 'em, and attempt to arrest me as a terrorist, or worse!

Uh, no thanks ... I'll stick with the gold, platinum and silver.

But hey, for those with the room, oil might be a logical choice ...
perhaps a covered swimming pool?

Hi Drifter, Winter static is not a problem here - the summer Tropicl storms are, and the DX1 is better than most in keeping it quiet.
According to a side by side I did with the Wellbrook ALA 1530 it was quieter than that as well. Every one who visits my shack compliments me on how quiet the DX1 is. See:
http://www.dxing.info/community/viewtopic.php?f=17&t=2580

As for avalability, RF Systems still carry the DX1 in their shop at E550, but I do see Universal does not have it at the moment.

Have fun and good DX

This is a non-issue for me. I think you all should check before you jump to the conclusion this is going to be a problem for you.

Synchronous electric clocks are a thing of the past. I suspect if you can find them today, they would be the cheapest made, if they are even made anymore!

Chulu might have a problem with the draws full of old salvation army and goodwill clocks, I am sure he has.

But, for the rest of us, this might just be another replay of the non-issue of the 2000 computer date farce ... it really wasn't a hardware problem then ... a simple software fix took care of all problems ...

---

Perhaps... but those 'quartz' clocks are also notorious for keeping lousy time. The one on the wall above our TV picks up 2 minutes a month, the one in our Chevy Tracker radio loses about a minute every three weeks. The one in our Ford Flex picks up about a minute a month. These may not sound too bad for most, but I've had wind up Timex watches that kept better time.
Oh, that clock in your computer gets synched to an external server at least once a day.

But, again.. the major problem wouldn't be with our measly toys, but with making the entire grid function properly. Some of the interties are DC (for long runs, it's got far less loss, even figuring in conversion losses <AC-DC-AC>) , but where you have several power generating stations within a fairly small geographical area, I think they stick with AC, because those short runs are not so economical for conversion.

Morning John.

Thanks for the reply. Yes, read your reports a while back. I have been watching the Universal site for this antenna. Universal is about a 2 hour trip for me, and I'm always looking for a reason to make the trip there. Here, it's lighting in the summer, and static in the winter.
Love my Wellbrooks, but always collecting info for the next antenna project. as always, thanks for the info.

I can see that.
What is under discussion here isn't investing, however.
It's returning the US to a gold standard.

Lighting in the summer is understandable, but "static in the winter"???

Are you referring to what is commonly called "precipitation static" that occurs when snow impinges on your antenna?

Portable wealth can come in handy.

They do.
Dollars are backed by America's value as a nation.
Tangible or not.
What American's have created is worth a lot more than anything you could ever dig out of the ground.

Not at all.
Even in the sense you meant it.
RMBS derivatives, for example, were worth what the issuer said they were for nearly the entire history of this type of security.
That is still largely true today.

It does. It's the productive output of the US.

This is what the title of Adam Smith's famous 1776 book is all about.
Commonly shortened to _The Wealth of Nations_, its key point is that a country's wealth is equal to its output over a unit of time -- a year, for convenience's sake. If you print the right amount of money to equal that output, you have stable prices. Too much, and you have inflation. Too little (or if you foolishly tie your currency to gold), and, if your economy is productive, you'll eventually have deflation and the collapse of your financial structure, starting with banks.

Gold works fine if you plow your fields with oxen and heat your house with wood that you chop yourself. Storing up nuts, or gold, or wheat (Smith's example was cooking pots) gets you a lot of....cooking pots. That insight was the beginning of modern economics.

Smith is the conservatives' favorite, BTW.

Individuals are not small models of national economies. For starters, you can't print money, or take out loans promising to pay them in John's Bucks.

Secondly, you won't likely be successful assessing and collecting taxes from your neighbors, unless you're a church. d8-)

That is a REAL PROBLEM, if you are the one holding that asset, it can become worthless, and overnight.

Already our output to population ratio is in shambles, manufacturing loss of jobs to china/india/etc. is a major, in not main, reason.

TANGIBLE/REAL assets, like gold, cannot ever be "lost", "destroyed", etc. The DON'T change/decay over time ... their value in investment, jewelery, industry will always be there.

Hey, I don't care if you pursue a different road and attempt to hold your wealth in toilet paper ... gold, platinum, silver, etc. will just ALWAYS, and for all time, be a good investment.

If you had invested in gold 5,000 years ago, at the beginning of civilization, in china, it would still have its' same value today.

Precious metals are like that, yanno'?

But true, if you had invested/bought/held an oil well, it would have been and even better investment -- and, it would have stored well, in place, deep underground, for the time period in question. I can think of few other things which are so.

When I went to high school, I had a "night-watchman" job at a small power generating and distribution yard on the Mokelume River in the sierra foothills, on weekends, and only lasted about a year. I watched a wall of gauges, and chased away other teenagers from the immediate area of the station.

This is my whole experience with power generation/delivery, other than a small 20 KW diesel generator I have for home emergencies.

But, I would imagine the engineers would have a way to either inductively/capacitively lag/lead the wave to sync with another source. If not, they'd better grab some new engineers.

But, still, the control will not be good enough to run exact time-keeping systems. But then, we really do have better systems now-a-days ... it will probably upset people with valued synchronous electric clocks, and I can sympathize with them. But then, I resisted the change from analog to digital broadcast TV, now I like it much better ... but it sure "junked" a lot of peoples TVs!

Just sayin'.

india, etc. ... I really find no use for instant messengers, social

LOL
The US is number ten in the world at $46,300 as of 2009.
The nine ahead of the US are tiny countries whose principal activity is either oil production of financial manipulation where income disparity is enormous.
The one notable exception is Norway at number 6 ($54,900.00)

India is at #165 ($2,500.00 PPP)
China, #136 ($4,900.00 PPP)

An American out produces an Indian by twenty two times and 11 times a Chinese using this measure.

And it will always be relative to it's purchasing power.
That will go to zero in the event that currencies around the world evaporate.
An apple tree or a cow will be worth more than it's weight in gold.

Except for the recession, our GDP per capita keeps climbing:

Until it isn't. The price of gold is based on neurotic fantasies. It actually has little value, except to certain chemists and electronics manufacturers. There is nothing "real" about the value of gold, beyond, perhaps, $250/pound. If you can get it at that price, buy it all up.

As for its value over time, we tend to have short memories:

http://www.kitco.com/scripts/hist_charts/yearly_graphs.plx

One hopes you didn't buy in 1979 and sell in 2000. One also hopes that today isn't just another 1979.

The key is to buy at the right time. But who knows when it's the right time?
Over the really long haul, it's not much of an investment. In fact, it's not an investment at all. It's a wild-ass-guess speculation.

If you want to buy gold, go for it. Just keep that issue clearly distinct from the idea of basing a national currency on it.

I'd be too old to enjoy it. <g> More realistically, if you'd bought gold in 1950 ($40.25/oz.) and held it until the end of 2010 ($1420.25), you'd have made 6.1% interest on your investment. Whoopie. And if you'd sold in, say, 2005, you'd have made 4.5%

And you'd have had no fun with your investment at all. d8-)

If you'd bought a Ferrari Barchetta in 1950 and sold it within the last few years, you'd have made over 10% -- and you'd have had a heck of a lot of fun.

Propagation Forecast Bulletin 26 ARLP026
From Tad Cook, K7RA

To all radio amateurs

SB PROP ARL ARLP026
ARLP026 Propagation de K7RA

The predicted Field Day geomagnetic storm never appeared, although conditions were unsettled leading up to last weekend. Planetary A index was 7 and 7 on Saturday and Sunday, and mid-latitude A index numbers were 5 and 6.

Reports so far indicate an enjoyable and productive Field Day 2011.

Average daily sunspot numbers for the week were down 13 points compared to the previous week, and average daily solar flux was off by over 7 points.

Predicted solar flux for the near term is quite a bit lower than recent numbers. The forecast shows solar flux at 87 for July 1-5, then 90 on July 6-8, 88 on July 9, 92 and 96 on July 10-11, and 100 on July 12-15, then back to 88 on July 16.

Expected planetary A index is 8, 10, 12 and 8 July 1-4, 5 on July 5-7, 7 on July 8-9, and 5 again on July 10-18.

Geophysical Institute Prague says watch for unsettled conditions July 1, unsettled to active July 2, unsettled July 3, quiet to unsettled July 4-5, and quiet July 6-7.

Good news from WM7D and W7GTF who heard on a WWV broadcast that the Space Weather Prediction Center decided not to drop the hourly geo-physical report, and due to all the feedback they may actually expand it. See the official announcement at http://www.swpc.noaa.gov/wwv/.

Now that June has passed, let's look at the 3-month moving average of sunspot numbers. Centered on June 2010 through May 2011 the moving average of daily sunspot numbers were 20.4, 23.2, 28.9, 33, 35.6, 31, 30.1, 35.3, 55.7, 72.3, 74.4 and 65.9. We have to look quite far back to find moving averages of daily sunspot numbers as high as the last few months. Back in 2004, the 3-month moving average of daily sunspot numbers centered on June through December were 80.8, 78.1, 69.3, 66, 66.3, 61 and 52.2.

Mel Frost, KD7DCR of Whitehall, Montana (DN-35) reports that on 6 meters at 0301z on June 29 he worked NZ5E and AB5F, both in eastern Arkansas. AB5F faded from S-6 into the mud about 35 minutes later, NZ5E started at S-9 +10 and faded to S-8, until they finally signed off at 0420z. He couldn't find any evidence on DK Sherlock of others enjoying this path.

Jon Jones, N0JK of Wichita, Kansas (EM17jr) on June 25 wrote: "I worked PJ6D at 1704z today. They came up on a QSB peak, worked AC0A then me. Sent the usual '599' but more like a 579. Solid clear signal and clean confirmed QSO. Earlier heard them at 1600z but very weak like on scatter".

"They are running an amp, so I was hearing them better than they me. Had to call several times to get a response. PJ6D faded down shortly after I worked them. Had just come in the apartment after helping the XYL load some furniture in our car. Could have easily missed PJ6D. Could not go out portable today due to T-Storms".

Also on June 25, Bill Hohnstein, K0HA of Seward, Nebraska (EN10lx) wrote: "I worked PJ76 at 1502z and PJ6D at 1506z. Both were strong then. The PJ's and others in that area were stronger with 120 degree Yagi phasing. That's how my antenna was set when I worked them. By 1520z signals from that area were better with 0 degree Yagi phasing".

"I think that I had my earliest run of JA's today: 29 between 2137 and 2216z, with two more around 2240z. I think that JA6LCJ in PM52 was my furthest (10,457 km)".

Bill also added: "I did a lot of antenna checks while working the JA's. All that I checked were stronger with 120 degree phasing between two of my Yagis! Most were pretty much unworkably weak with 0 degree phasing AND with just my 6M7 being fed. My adding the phasing option is definitely a success!"

Bill linked to a recording he made of JN1NDY at http://www.k0ha.com/6m/JN1NDY2011.mp3. He also added "And, if you want to hear how JA4DND's signal sounded, go to: http://www.k0ha.com/6m/JA4DND.mp3 . That's how the pileup sounded most of the time".

Estimated planetary A indices were 18, 10, 7, 7, 5, 4, and 2, with a mean of 7.6. Estimated mid-latitude A indices were 16, 10, 5, 6, 4, 2, and 2, with a mean of 6.4.

I imagine threats of death might even provoke more output ... but, worse, you seem to be taking retail sales and "middleman profits" in your figures ... this is not real output, but profiting off others labors ... which, indeed, is what slaves are for!

Funny, there was not a stoneage civilization which did not value gold, a visit to the smithsonian, a look at egytpian pharaohs, and china, proves out this point, which has already been pointed out.

However, unless we go back to the stoneage, gold has real value in electronics, infrared technology, connectors, corrosion resistance, etc. in technology ... but, simply its' jewelery value alone make it a "FOREVER money card."

Then the spanish, who in ~1516 demanded the ransom of the inca ruler as his weight in gold ... oh yes, those spanish were particularly fond of gold, and the pirates ...

Your arguments are moronic, to the point of it seeming, you wish to look like an idiot!

You just can't argue against history, from the beginning of civilization and not look like a complete moron ... well, unless you simply rewrite human history, that is a possibility, I suppose.

But, I would wait until it has been rewritten. ROFLOL!

THERE NEVER HAS BEEN A TIME IN HISTORY WHEN GOLD HAS BEEN WORTHLESS. Indeed, there has never been a time in history when gold, and precious metals, have not been HIGHLY valued.

But then, a drowning man would empty his pockets of gold to save his life, a real DUH! moment.

However, this could change, but not a real probability in anyones' lifetime reading this ...

But, diamonds were of great value, and since history began, until just recently, and Gemesis and Apollo Diamond came on the scene:

We already know how and can make gold from baser metals, but the cost is simply ridiculous -- by magnitudes!

There is no such thing as "jewelry value." There is something that could be called fashion pricing.

As for the others, that's where the $250/lb. value estimate comes from. Too soft and too heavy to be of any structural use, its chemical properties are about all that's left.

You're living in the past, John. No modern currency is tied to gold in any way. It's an artifact from a time when people were impressed with shiny things and shiny decoration was a symbol of wealth and power.

Are you impressed with shiny things?

It seems rare to have a quality ISP provide usenet, now-a-days, AT&T (yahoo) does not.

It seems strange to me that such a service as usenet (was here at almost the very beginning of ARPANET) is ignored by ISP ... it would seem as logical as email to be provided!

I could see banning binaries ... and it would seem to be a simple matter of recognizing them, even if encrypted, by simple "data pattern" recognition ... encoded pictures/music simply makes a different pattern in the encrypted data, than that of text ...

I just find it strange ... like when "something doesn't feel right" to you ... or, you sense someone watching you.

It's gross domestic product per capita.
Your starving slaves might be working harder but they aren't producing nearly as much.

What you posted
"Already our output to population ratio is in shambles, manufacturing loss of jobs to china/india/etc"

Is just false.

Stone Age economies, by definition, aren't industrial economies.

> THERE NEVER HAS BEEN A TIME IN HISTORY WHEN GOLD HAS BEEN WORTHLESS.

Sure there has.
It isn't even highly valued today!

Were the US to return to the gold standard immediately, gold wouuld have to begin trading at $30,000.00 an ounce to balance with America's GNP.
Using that metric ( and I don't know why anyone would ) gold prices are currently at 1/20th of their value.

> Indeed, there has never been a time in history when gold, and precious > metals, have not been HIGHLY valued.

The exact opposite is true in terms of utility value.
Gold, beyond a certain point, is only worth what some damned fool is willing to pay for it.
It certainly hasn't been a good investment over time.
There isn't any reason it would be either.
As a commodity, there aren't really many things it can be used for and none of those things have the utility value of food, water, shelter or even medicine.
Especially not in Stone Age societies.

Ramses would have given every spec of gold in his entire kingdom for ten grams of the cure for syphilis - which is what killed him.
How does this obvious truth fit in to your system of valuing gold?

Hey, look.
Market timimg, which is what you are really talking about, doesn't work very well with equities either.
It can, but like gold speculators, predicting the future comes with a great deal of uncertainty and the odds are against any bet.
For every dollar the few market timer's make at least 100 are lost.

Liberty Net: June 25, 2011

http://3950.net/2011/07/liberty-net-june-25-2011/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

IONOSPHERIC CONDITIONS were good ï¿½ and jamming was nonexistent ï¿½ as the most historic net in amateur radio, the Liberty Net, continued to impress with its intelligent ideas and debate from stations around the continent.

Here are a just few examples of this weekï¿½s interesting discussions:

ï¿½ It is outrageous for the Obamas to laud and to receive a personally-signed book from Nelson Mandela ï¿½ a man who was responsible for ï¿½necklacingï¿½ his political opponents, which involved tying them up, placing a gasoline-soaked tire around each of their necks and then setting them on fire, causing an extremely painful and prolonged death. (11 minutes)

ï¿½ It is doubly outrageous that Obama would equate Mandela with Gandhi ï¿½ his polar opposite. Gandhi was a peaceful man, a racial nationalist, and a racial separatist. (15 minutes)

ï¿½ ï¿½Operation Gunrunner,ï¿½ if you can believe the regime in Washington, was a plan to give hundreds of thousands of guns to the Mexican drug cartels in order to ï¿½find our more about them.ï¿½ Realists say thatï¿½s just a cover story for brazenly arming these killers and facilitating their continuing murders. (25 minutes)

ï¿½ Congress complains that Obamaï¿½s military actions in Libya are illegal ï¿½ but then continues to fund them. It sounds like the protest is just for show, and that the Washington regimeï¿½s executive branch can now murder anyone they want, anytime they want. Representative government, and the legitimate American government, came to an end some time ago. (41 minutes)

ï¿½ Cocaine supplies are now reportedly being diluted with an industrial chemical which mimics the actions of flesh-eating bacteria, literally dissolving the faces of the drugï¿½s users. Who is behind ï¿½ and who could conceivably accomplish ï¿½ this horrible act? (45 minutes)

ï¿½ The sudden onset of Hugo Chavezï¿½s severe medical problems ï¿½ and the mysterious air crash that just happened to kill the Russian scientists who were helping Iran to build nuclear power stations ï¿½ bear the telltale signs of Mossad/CIA or other intelligence agency operations. (59 minutes)

ï¿½ After the recent exposure of its multiple fraudulent prosecutions and other illegal acts, itï¿½s time to abolish the BATF ï¿½ whose very existence was unconstitutional to begin with. (1 hour 14 minutes)

ï¿½ Why is the Federal Reserve giving ï¿½sweetheartï¿½ loans ï¿½ at 0.1% interest ï¿½ to foreign banks, while Americans are losing their incomes and their homes at record rates? (1 hour 19 minutes)

ï¿½ The ï¿½withdrawalï¿½ from Afghanistan is a farce: Far fewer troops are scheduled to withdraw than were added in the latest ï¿½surge,ï¿½ and many of these are scheduled to leave far in the future, by which time these election-driven promises will be long forgotten. What remains on track are plans for numerous bases, so American troops can be used to enforce the oligarchï¿½s will there indefinitely. (1 hour 34 minutes)

ï¿½ The Washington regimeï¿½s wildly misnamed ï¿½Justice Departmentï¿½ has now strong-armed ISPs into instituting a ï¿½three strikes and youï¿½re outï¿½ policy (read: you will be denied Internet access and required to attend re-education camps) for users who allegedly stream ï¿½unauthorizedï¿½ audio or video over the ï¿½Net. Notice: no trial, no recourse, and no control over who decides what is ï¿½unauthorized.ï¿½ (1 hour 42 minutes)

Remember that you can find the Liberty Net in the upper part of 75 meters (lately it has been consistently higher than 3950 kHz) every Saturday night at 10PM Eastern Time ï¿½ join in, or listen live on the Internet via N2SAG or N2IRJ, or listen at your leisure via the mp3 files posted here at http://3950.net every week. Usually the new recording is posted early on Sunday. It will be visible at the top of the upper right column of every page of this site.

Once again, thanks to W1WCR for running this important and historic discussion net, and thanks also to N2IRJ for making these recordings available.

What you call "Real" and what the State of California considers "Real" just aren't the same thing is all.
You can take the States own numbers for people not included in the official total used to calculate the unemployment rate as reported and get the same figure.
The official unemployment rate has a rigorous definition and is used for specific purposes.

Your "Real" number or rate might also be useful, telling a bigger story, but not for the purposes the State of California uses the official number.

This is why GDP is used instead of GNP.
Gross National Product includes everything.
Gross Domestic Product doesn't.

Our output per capita isn't low at all. It's pretty high compared to the rest of the world.
LOL
Unemployment and lack of jobs don't change the number of people (capi's) in

Also keep in mind that our labor-force participation rate (the percentage of adults in the whole population who are currently employed) is still high, at 64.2%, despite the recession. For comparison, it was 59.0% in 1965, 64.8% in 1985.

Our productivity per worker is 'way higher than it was in earlier years, so our total output per capita also is 'way higher than it was.

ROFLOL!!!

I you state the government "obfuscations" well, and then there is reality ...

Truth is, there is massive foreclosures, massive unemployment, wages have stagnated, food prices are inflating, medical costs are inflating ...

But then, there are idiot who don't notice anything ... and want to talk imaginary figures.

I don't see much which isn't a lie. If we faced the real truth, there would be mass panic ... but then, that day is coming ...

Oh...like the "official unemployment rates?"

Which are less than half of the actual unemployment rates....

One of the side effects of a recession is that companies find in many cases, they can have the same level of productivity with less people. Doesn't bode that well for rehiring as many when the economy turns around.

The reality is that the "Official" unemployment rate frequently cited is the number generated to cakcukate transfers of funds between the State and Federal government as well as the State and its Counties.
Both the State and Federal government also provide information on underemployment totals as well as discouraged workers and many other things.
That you either don't understand this or want to missuse the figure isn't relevant.

All true.
And none of it has any bearing on GDP per capita.

What you posted
"Already our output to population ratio is in shambles, manufacturing loss of jobs to china/india/etc"
Is still just false.

If you can cause people to think dog turds have value, you'd never stumble across one again, in your lifetime!

If people knew just what value was in those little pieces of green paper you can't even wipe your arse with, properly, there would be a run on the banks ... wholesale bedlam would follow.

Most people are stupid, they simply "believe" and, therefore, it is so ... again, akin to that leap of faith which allows one to believe in god.

Very true. If you're a "creative destruction" type, or a merger/buyout pirate, that's a good thing -- it boosts efficiency. But if you're looking around to figure out where the jobs are going to come from, it's alarming.

True enough. But I've never tried to convince people of such things. It may be dull, but I tend to stick to the evidence.

Hmmm...something like realizing what "value" is in those little pieces of gold? They'd be Ok for fishing sinkers, but you'd have to paint them with flat paint to knock down the shine. Otherwise, not much.

I'd find it easier to take you seriously, John, if you showed any evidence of having studied any of this stuff. It sounds like you make it up as you go

John,

The unfettered BS that many posters, like yourself, proliferate on the USENET, is the exact reason that most ISPs don't want to mess with it any longer.

But, hey, you already know that,

Ok, that does it. John, you're a clueless rube with a head full of mush, who talks through his hat. You probably couldn't look up a fact if your life depended on it.

It's people like you, and the Tea Party ignoramuses, who are threatening to run the country into the gutter. You never bothered to learn ANY of the things you're talking about, yet you're ready to call the people who have spent a lifetime with it "dumb."

Here's a clue, rube: You don't know what money is. You don't know why gold is no longer a practical basis for currency. You don't even know what our GDP is, or what the trend is, or what percentage of adults actually have jobs. It's high.

You think that our currency is going to collapse, but you wouldn't have the vaguest idea about why that has never happened, even in worse circumstances, and why it won't happen now.

You're hopeless. I was trying to pass along a few facts that you might find surprising and interesting, and incorporate them into your thinking. But you're immune to facts, just like the Tea Baggers, and you substitute insults for taking the time to learn something. So you aren't worth the time.

Go buy gold, rant and rave, and try to keep your blood pressure under control. You're not ready for this discussion. It's 'way over your head.

All the unemployment figures are accurate on is the number of people currently drawing unemployment insurance. Reality is at least twice that.

Worse, robotics are true technological automation are still in their infancy. What this translates into is more loss of human workers due to larger and larger percentages of manufacturing being done by robots.

But then, robots will probably be building the cars in china, india, etc. by then.

I think you live in a fantasy world where you attempt to down play

As, I have pointed out, gold has NEVER been worthless, since the dawn of mankind. If you have a tribe, a village, a society, you have gold with a value. In a technological society, its' value is much increased.

The term, "Good as gold" exists for a good reason ... in my whole lifetime it has only increased in value ... a dollar, when I was a kid would buy 20 candy bars, today it buys one ... a dollar, by candy bar index, is worth 1/20 of what it was then. Back then 1/50th of an ounce of gold was worth a dollar, today 1/1487th of an ounce is worth a dollar
... blows all your stupidity right out in the open!

Just so I'm short on yours, John. I have little patience with people who are too lazy to find out what they're talking about before bloviating all over the NG.

As for Gunner, he's a story unto himself. Actually, many stories, some of which are real hoots. d8-)

Isn't that the way the welfare recipients gauge their wealth?

Funny, but I strongly suspect there is reason you state that, and not the reason you intended ... it is called "reading between the lines."

Next you will jump up and claim you are a college educated liberal/democrat/welfare-bum/intellectual/etc.

We don't like those kind either ...

If you had invested that dollar at 6% 60 years ago, instead of in gold, it would be worth the same today (or as of December, which was the handy value I had to work with) as the gold is. It would buy you just as many candy bars.

Do you do compound interest? It's not difficult.

That's how sensible people measure the value of their currency. It's worth what you can buy with it, no more and no less. That's all any money has ever been worth.

If your $50s are worth less, send them all to me, and I'll even send you $20 worth of gold for each one.

well, js, you have definitely proved you are unable to understand simple arithmetic, much less understand any factual data. Let us believe that when you were a kid a dollar would buy 20 candy bars - and that it buys one now (though I do wonder what candy you are eating) - what was the price of gold when you were a kid? what is it now? what was the price of bread, of a car, of a hammer? your data is 100% irrelevant, it does not account for any economic factors, even something so simple as "buying power" - tell me - actually, tell all of us, just how many candy bars you could have bought with a gram of gold when you were a kid - and please, specify the date.

On the presumption that you are too stupid to figure this out for yourself, here is some real data - please avail yourself of this data when you answer the question

The Hershey Company was kind enough to supply us with price/weight data for their famous Hershey Bar from 1908-1986:

[1908] 9/16 oz.....2 cents
[1918] 16/16 oz.....3 cents
[1920] 9/16 oz.....3 cents

Well, if one is fond of criminal negros, such as yourself, I guess it could be different story. After all, beauty is in the eye of the beholder, and you just can't explain some peoples' tastes!

But then, idiots only seem to keep score, and keep store, on political correctness, to the point of tossing the baby with the bathwater -- go figure.

You sure aren't anything special, the schools turn out vast numbers each and every years, dumber than than the last, and most resembling you ... although, you might have gotten the jump on them.

Hey, that's interesting. It got cheaper in some years. If you want a simple tool to compare prices by year, this handy one will let you compare prices with inflation for any two years back to 1913:

Yep, born in the 1950's, that looks about right ... most candy bars were a nickel a piece, if on sale, you could still grab 'em for 3 cents ...

And, at $50 dollars and ounce, back then, a dollar was worth 1/50 of an ounce of gold. Today, gold is ~1487 dollars and ounce, making a dollar worth 1/1487th of an ounce of gold.

Sorry it wasn't simple for you to figure out ... but then, every now and then one enjoys a good spoon feeding, doesn't one?

Actually, there were price controls, put on in the 30's - 40's that were torn off in the 1970's. This was the very beginning of the runaway inflation we are now caught in ... eventually, if we survive, price controls will need to be instituted again. After stability is regained, let us hope the lesson has been finally learned, and they remain in place from there on ...

Then, we must be in total agreement. Because I have always claimed the cost of everything has always remained the same -- didn't you get the part about one ounce of gold buying a nice suit during the gold rush (and before, simply name a year), and it will still buy that same nice suit today!

Only a false "money" like the dollar throws off all computations, but then, fiat money is that way ...

I just pointed this out, again, with explaining that a dollar was worth 1/50th of a troy ounce of gold in ~1960, and that today the dollar is worth 1/1487th of a troy ounce of gold. The value of the gold DID NOT change, the value of the worthless money did ...

Show me a valid financial consultant who doesn't recommend you hold, at a minimum, 25% of your assets in gold, they simply don't exist.

Mine said, "Put what you can't afford to lose in gold." I put it all, except what I need for running my operations for the next 3 years or so
... and, with my present income, that is probably more like 6 to 10, even with increasing inflation, if inflation goes thought the roof, it all goes up for grabs. If the chinese can free themselves from our manipulations over their needed oil, it could begin to happen that minute!

I am not saying that kind of commitment to gold is for everyone, but the 25% certainly IS!

Everyone in this discussion has said you should spend what you want to on gold, as an individual. What's nutz is to tie gold to our currency.

2924. Obama may be in deep trouble… Chief Justice John Roberts, U.S. Supreme Court

The whole article, here:
By Rebel Rouser from Texas

According to sources who watch the inner workings of the federal government, a smackdown of Barack Obama by the U.S. Supreme Court may be inevitable. Ever since Obama assumed the office of President, critics have hammered him on a number of Constitutional issues.

Critics have complained that much, if not all of Obamaï¿½s major initiatives run headlong into Constitutional roadblocks on the power of the federal government.

Obama certainly did not help himself in the eyes of the Court when he used the venue of the State of the Union address early in the year to publicly flog the Court over its ruling that the First Amendment grants the right to various organizations to run political ads during the time of an election.

The tongue-lashing clearly did not sit well with the Court, as demonstrated by Justice Sam Alito, who publicly shook his head and stated under his breath, ï¿½Thatï¿½s not true,ï¿½ when Obama told a flat-out lie concerning the Courtï¿½s ruling.

As it has turned out, this was a watershed moment in the relationship between the executive and the judicial branches of the federal government. Obama publicly declared war on the court, even as he blatantly continued to propose legislation that flies in the face of every known Constitutional principle upon which this nation has stood for over 200 years.

Obama has even identified Chief Justice John Roberts as his number one enemy, that is, apart from Fox News and Rush Limbaugh, Beck, Hannity, and so on.

And it is no accident that the one swing-vote on the court, Justice Anthony Kennedy, stated recently that he has no intention of retiring until ï¿½Obama is gone.ï¿½

Apparently, the Court has had enough.

The Roberts Court has signaled, in a very subtle manner, of course, that it intends to address the issues about which Obama critics have been screaming to high heaven.

A ruling against Obama on any one of these important issues could potentially cripple the Administration.

Such a thing would be long overdue.

First, there is ObamaCare, which violates the Constitutional principle barring the federal government from forcing citizens to purchase something.

And no, this is not the same thing as states requiring drivers to purchase car insurance, as some of the intellectually-impaired claim.

The Constitution limits FEDERAL government, not state governments, from such things, and further, not everyone has to drive, and thus, a citizen could opt not to purchase car insurance by simply deciding not to drive a vehicle.

In the ObamaCare world, however, no citizen can ï¿½opt out.ï¿½

Second, sources state that the Roberts court has quietly accepted information concerning discrepancies in Obamaï¿½s history that raise serious questions about his eligibility for the office of President.

The charge goes far beyond the birth certificate issue. This information involves possible fraudulent use of a Social Security number in Connecticut, while Obama was a high school student in Hawaii.

And that is only the tip of the iceberg.

Third, several cases involving possible criminal activity, conflicts of interest, and pay-for-play cronyism could potentially land many Administration officials, if not Obama himself, in hot water with the Court.

Frankly, in the years this writer has observed politics, nothing comes close to comparing with the rampant corruption of this Administration, not even during the Nixon years.

Nixon and the Watergate conspirators look like choirboys compared to the jokers that populate this Administration.

In addition, the Court will eventually be forced to rule on the dreadful decision of the Obama DOJ suing the state of Arizona.

That, too, could send the Obama doctrine of open borders to an early grave, given that the Administration refuses to enforce federal law on illegal aliens.

And finally, the biggie that could potentially send the entire house of cards tumbling in a free-fall is the latest revelation concerning the Obama-Holder Department of Justice and its refusal to pursue the New Black Panther Party.

The group was caught on tape committing felonies by attempting to intimidate Caucasian voters into staying away from the polls.

A whistle-blower who resigned from the DOJ is now charging Holder with the deliberate refusal to pursue cases against blacks, particularly those who are involved in radical hate-groups, such as the New Black Panthers, who have been caught on tape calling for the murder of white people and their babies.

This one is a biggie that could send the entire Administration crumbling ï¿½ that is, if the Justices have the guts to draw a line in the sand at the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

End of the obamacon?

Regards,
JS

The price controls were dropped after the Korean War. Nixon re-imposed controls from '71 into '74.

Inflation rates (headline CPI -- all items) have hardly budged since 1975.
They actually went DOWN for about four months the year before last:

Not unless the economy really takes off, and inflation with it.

Wage and price controls are an emergency measure. They distort markets and create pent-up demand that eventually finds a leak and escapes. Let's hope the lessons we've gained from price controls in the past keeps us from ever having to implement them again.

There must be some really crazy stuff going on between your ears.

You seem to have great faith in those false government figures, like the COLA ... we will see how they fair in a real world test ...

Obviously, people like enron employees never thought it would happen to them, now they are with out pensions and their investments, obviously the people in GM thought it could never happen to them, and where are they now, etc., etc.

I was just thinking, I was heir to physical gold because my ancestors lived though a depression and a world war, or two, and learned a harsh lesson ... now that has happened again, the same, wars and depression, and now my children and family will, once again, be heir to some physical gold ... it is very circular, kinda' like history repeating itself ... it frankly makes me happy, I am lucky to be able to repay the sacrifices that those before me made, and the things of value they gave to me are passed on down the line -- I should think they must be pleased ...

JS

Eh, I should have remembered: the Grignon pitch. This Nystrom guy appears to be a small fry who's parroting Grignon's economic theories, which are re-writes of Murray Rothbard, Lew Rockwell, snd some others in the Austrian School clan.

The short take is that it doesn't matter that the debt is greater than the amount of money in circulation. The proof is that debt does not expand exponentially with the creation of new money, as Grignon says it must. The reasons are that there are many monetary actions that central banks use to control money supply; the money multiplier inherent in fractional-reserve banking is just one of them. It wouldn't take many cycles of multiplication through the fractional-reserve system before interest rates would be through the roof, if Grignon et al. were right.

You're talking about heterodox theories that require book-length arguments. We've been using fractional reserves for over 200 years, which, again, if Grignon were right, would have bankrupted the economy and frozen credit into an immovable mass at least a century ago.

So the evidence isn't there. If you believe it, so be it.

We saw a lot of that after the 1998=2000 recession.

Companies decided to start working smarter..and bought a lot of high tech, high speed CNC machines and laying of the crank turners

Where there was once a room with 50 mills in it..with 50 crank turners..there is now a pair of CNC mills with pallet loaders and 3 guys running them.

Which means the mills were paid off in less than a year..and 47 guys went out on the street.

While the Government reports U3 and U6 numbers..the media and the government seldom uses the U6 numbers...which include those no longer receiving unemployment or working only part time.

A number 2x as high as the U3 common numbers

2x or even more.

So what is the weight and price of that same candybar in July of 2011?

$1.25..and weighs less than 1.5 oz

You and your clones are the only ones saying anything different.
It's your ignorance, willful ignorance, that's remarkable.
That and your weak attempt at deception.
Intellectual flatulence seems to be your stock in trade.
Either up your game or take your meds.

No, that's the reality of this situation.
There a group of people collecting benefits and another that aren't.
A third group consists of the "discouraged" and a fourth composed of the "under employed".

The group that really counts consists of those that are very rarely mentioned - the employed.

And what you posted
"Already our output to population ratio is in shambles, manufacturing loss of jobs to china/india/etc"

Continues to be just false by any actual measure.

google is certainly keeping this kind of stuff out of sight...

http://www.wnd.com/index.php?fa=PAGE.view&pageId=152937

Internet giant Google today was hushing up the new dispute over President Obama's strange Social Security number by diverting searches for news reports on the issue to unrelated stories about Elena Kagan, oil, Tampa and the Federal Reserve.

The actual story, posted on WND.com, explained how two private investigators ï¿½ working independently ï¿½ are asking why Obama is using a Social Security number set aside for applicants in Connecticut while there is no record he ever had a mailing address in the state.

Google has turned into a real piece of garbage. pathetic...

How many people do you have inside your head?

It seems that the only thing you know much about is how welfare folks behave?

Personal experience I suspect.

You also seem to be threatened by college educated liberal/democrat/

Hello,

In my "old" 909, the Wide/Narrow setting only has effect when in AM mode (not LSB/USB). It always uses the narrow filter when in SSB.

You, as a typically ignorant and mentally ill Righty, don't seem to get it. Let me type it real slow to see if it helps you to understand.

1) EVERYONE (including the Republican, conservative Wall Street Journal), everyone that is except except da gummer, realizes the Big Crash occurred in 2008.

2) EVERYONE (except da gummer) realizes Obama didn't take office until 2009.

3) Please feel free to explain how Obama caused the Big Crash of 2008 to happen well before he took office.

Further information for your pea brain to digest:

1) The seeds of the Big Crash that occurred in 2008 on G.W. Bush's watch were sown in late 1999.

2) This was due to Congress, in late 1999, repealing the Glass-Steagall Act.

3) In late 1999, Congress was controlled by the...REPUBLICANS.

4) G.W. Bush had from 2000 to 2008 (2000-2006 with a Republican Congress) to take corrective action...and he did NOTHING.

Clearly and per my original statement, the answer is indeed "Blame Bush"(tm). Got it now?

Can you give some examples of the "shit-mess", as I can't find any.

Abusers you have across all kind of people, but it doesn't mean that being gay equals abuse. So I don't see why you put "queer homosexual, child molesters and perverts" into the same bin.

It has enslaved people to debt for the last 40 years here, at least. As the public servants, wall street, banksters, federal reserve, etc. have become more corrupt and unethical, they have abused the ability of the flawed debt system to extract ever increasing "productivity" (read slavery here) out of those living under the system.

You only need your eyes and a full appraisal/analysis of where we are now to realize that, no obfuscation necessary!

I see what you are saying, however, it is "all of them" (main scream media.)

It sure looks like they are all in cahoots, as NONE of them will break ranks and take any kinda of support for ANYTHING which does not follow political correctness, the official line, the criminal public servants, etc.

Once again, if it walks like a duck, sounds like a duck, flys like a duck, treads water like a duck, smell like a duck, looks like a duck, nests like a duck, etc., it MUST, in final analysis, BE A DUCK!

No matter how difficult it is to believe that, that kind of conspiracy exists in our public servants which are taking advantage of the peoples trust ...

You fail to understand the meaning of "slavery"
Slavery is forced servitude.
People are not forced to go into debt

The huge debt binge in the US (and Europe) in the last couple of decades was because people believed that borrowing was the road to riches borrowing because you believe that the assets will grow in value faster than the interest cost
If the theory is valid the more you borrow the more you make

Today after the fall of value in housing, pension and stock most of the public no longer believes that theory

the only ones still operating under that theory today are the ones borrowing to buy gold and other commodities that are perceived to be rapidly increasing in price

When those bubbles pop there will be darn few left willing to borrow as a means of winning the lottery

Yes, but then we are, and have been, becoming less of a manufacturing country and more of a service oriented country. We need more engineers and scientists and less attorneys.

Those jobs will be there, just in smaller, possibly more lucrative, numbers.

Everyone understands that Democrats have controlled both houses of Congress since 2007..well...everyone except Far Leftwing Extremist Fringe Kookers...and everyone (except the above) understands that ONE of the downward plunges occured in 2008. And further more..everyone (again except the above) understands that no only did the Obamassiah not help that significant but not huge recession...but he primed the cannon and blew the nation off the cliff and we are still free falling towards the canyon bottom below. And he continues to blow chunks out of the economy as it hurtles downwards.

The last year of Bush's term..we did indeed enter into a modest recession..both as a result of world economic issues..and as a result of the Gang of 100 Leftwingers fucking around with things they didnt have a clue about.

What is pretty fucking typical..is that not only did the Left not manage the modest recession..but blew the hell out of any recovery efforts.

Which is typical of the Left. This makes the second time they not only fucked up a recession..but turned it into a very long lasting Great Depression.

Just like the Last time.

UCLA Economists: FDRï¿½s Policies Prolonged Great Depression by 7 Years

A study by two UCLA economists argues that FDRï¿½s policies prolonged the Great Depression by 7 years.

This should come as no surprise to those who understand some of the basic principles of economics, as articulated in books like Basic Economics: A Common Sense Guide to the Economy by Thomas Sowell or Free to Choose by Milton Friedman or Economics in One Lesson: The Shortest and Surest Way to Understand Basic Economics by Henry Hazlitt.

Also, a recent book called FDRï¿½s Folly delves into the Great Depression in detail and shows very specifically how FDRï¿½s policies prolonged and deepened the Great Depression. What is unique about this particular study is how it also seeks to quantify that impact specifically.

Here are some very helpful excerpts:

ï¿½Why the Great Depression lasted so long has always been a great mystery, and because we never really knew the reason, we have always worried whether we would have another 10- to 15-year economic slump,ï¿½ said Ohanian, vice chair of UCLAï¿½s Department of Economics. ï¿½We found that a relapse isnï¿½t likely unless lawmakers gum up a recovery with ill-conceived stimulus policies.ï¿½

ï¿½.

ï¿½President Roosevelt believed that excessive competition was responsible for the Depression by reducing prices and wages, and by extension reducing employment and demand for goods and services,ï¿½ said Cole, also a UCLA professor of economics. ï¿½So he came up with a recovery package that would be unimaginable today, allowing businesses in every industry to collude without the threat of antitrust prosecution and workers to demand salaries about 25 percent above where they ought to have been, given market forces. The economy was poised for a beautiful recovery, but that recovery was stalled by these misguided policies.ï¿½

ï¿½.

ï¿½High wages and high prices in an economic slump run contrary to everything we know about market forces in economic downturns,ï¿½ Ohanian said. ï¿½As weï¿½ve seen in the past several years, salaries and prices fall when unemployment is high. By artificially inflating both, the New Deal policies short-circuited the marketï¿½s self-correcting forces.ï¿½

ï¿½.

ï¿½The fact that the Depression dragged on for years convinced generations of economists and policy-makers that capitalism could not be trusted to recover from depressions and that significant government intervention was required to achieve good outcomes,ï¿½ Cole said. ï¿½Ironically, our work shows that the recovery would have been very rapid had the government not intervened.ï¿½ [emphasis added]

Are you an ignorant arse?

Right now, you are borrowing against your grandchildrens' childrens' future! Besides the amount of debt they are already born into ...

If you don't understand that, come back when you do.

If you don't think you can be enslaved by debt, you are a moron twice over.

They are abusing/perverting/destroying the right to the churches tradition, marriage.

True, their act of perverting marriage is more like imbeciles painting graffiti on an unblemished wall, but totally attempts to redefine marriage to cover bonds/acts/commitments which are 180 degrees in opposition to a tradition held by churches since the dawn of recorded history, as old as the great flood itself, older even.

I see it as no less an abomination than if Childrens' Protective Services suddenly decided to endorse and support NAMBLA!

Or, a kindergarten teacher inviting a child molester to speak to the class, it would be the EXACT logic which would allow it.

Etc.

JS

Really? How does that work?

Did anybody pay back the debt from WW2?
I can't see how since the debt has been continually growing ever since

From your viewpoint did my Grandparents borrow against my future?

I mean really how are my Grandchildren any different than my grandparents?

I don't get how my grandparents enslaved me?
So enlighten this ignorant arse as to how my Grandparents did me so wrong.
Did they put me in slavery?

I do see that if the people of the US all suddenly go crazy and decide to pay off the Federal debt as fast as possible

it will be disastrous we will be quickly impoverished without currency or goods

Doing that would no doubt leave us with no money and scrounging for bugs in the dirt

So is that what you are worried about?
Are you worried that we will all lose our minds?

Maybe so, but I don't see that gold has ever helped anybody keep their sanity

All the evidence I see suggests the opposite

Yep, most receivers work like that . However, 909X potentially may have some serious bugs in software/hardware .

I have now done more extensive testing, mostly in the MW band with lots of different content and interference conditions. There is NO way that they have 4.5 and 2 KHz filters in there. One can hear the slightest difference in some cases, but not enough for the narrow setting to be effective in rejecting interference.
This radio is going back. Too bad because apart from this problem, the faulty keyboard (the keys sometimes do not respond to pressing them) and the relatively poor sensitivity (I live the West Coast, weak signal area, so I am sure it performs better in stronger signal areas like the East Coast or in Europe), it is a cool portable suitable for travel. I would give it at most 3 starts out of 5. Sangean has some work to do.

Thanks for all the responses.

Huge rare earth deposits found in Pacific: Japan experts
Reuters - Sun Jul 3rd, 2011 11:46 PM EDT

TOKYO (Reuters) - Vast deposits of rare earth minerals, crucial in making high-tech electronics products, have been found on the floor of the Pacific Ocean and can be readily extracted, Japanese scientists said on Monday.

"The deposits have a heavy concentration of rare earths. Just one square kilometer (0.4 square mile) of deposits will be able to provide one-fifth of the current global annual consumption," said Yasuhiro Kato, an associate professor of earth science at the University of Tokyo.

The discovery was made by a team led by Kato and including researchers from the Japan Agency for Marine-Earth Science and Technology.

They found the minerals in sea mud extracted from depths of 3,500 to 6,000 meters (11,500-20,000 ft) below the ocean surface at 78 locations. One-third of the sites yielded rich contents of rare earths and the metal yttrium, Kato said in a telephone interview.

The deposits are in international waters in an area stretching east and west of Hawaii, as well as east of Tahiti in French Polynesia, he said.

He estimated rare earths contained in the deposits amounted to 80 to 100 billion metric tons, compared to global reserves currently confirmed by the U.S. Geological Survey of just 110 million tonnes that have been found mainly in China, Russia and other former Soviet countries, and the United States.

Details of the discovery were published on Monday in the online version of British journal Nature Geoscience.

The level of uranium and thorium -- radioactive ingredients that are usually contained in such deposits that can pose environmental hazards -- was found to be one-fifth of those in deposits on land, Kato said.

A chronic shortage of rare earths, vital for making a range of high-technology electronics, magnets and batteries, has encouraged mining projects for them in recent years.

China, which accounts for 97 percent of global rare earth supplies, has been tightening trade in the strategic metals, sparking an explosion in prices.

Japan, which accounts for a third of global demand, has been stung badly, and has been looking to diversify its supply sources, particularly of heavy rare earths such as dysprosium used in magnets.

Kato said the sea mud was especially rich in heavier rare earths such as gadolinium, lutetium, terbium and dysprosium.

"These are used to manufacture flat-screen TVs, LED (light-emitting diode) valves, and hybrid cars," he said.

Extracting the deposits requires pumping up material from the ocean floor. "Sea mud can be brought up to ships and we can extract rare earths right there using simple acid leaching," he said.

"Using diluted acid, the process is fast, and within a few hours we can extract 80-90 percent of rare earths from the mud."

The team found that sites close to Hawaii and Tahiti were especially rich in rare earths, he said.

He gave no estimate of when extraction of the materials from the seabed might start.

An Illegitimate Child, An Illegitimate President: Despite Multiple Attempts, "No Comment" from the White House

Talk about your proverbial can of worms. Clearly, Barack Hussein Obama's Immigration file was the impetus for President Obama to release his "long form" last week. If he thought that would put the matter to rest, it has had the opposite effect. It has all raised more questions than it answered, as does the release of shocking revelations in BHO I's immigration file.

Clearly, BHO I was never divorced from his first wife in Kenya. Further, INS suspected the BHO I/Stanley Ann Dunham marriage was a sham, arranged strictly to secure immigration status for him. But if Barack Senior was a Muslim polygamist, his "marriage" to Stanley Ann Dunham was invalid. Obama Senior was a Kenyan citizen. Kenya was still under English law at this time.

Illegitimate children had different rights -- at least they certainly did in 1789. There is no way that the founders of this great nation intended for an illegitimate child of a foreign bigamist to attain the highest, most powerful position in the new land.

Further, when BHO I returned to Kenya, he apparently lived with his Kenyan first wife and his American third wife, suggesting that the Dunham "divorce" was a transitory ruse.

In 1964, Ann Dunham filed for divorce. By then, Barack had taken up with Ruth Nidesand, a teacher of Lithuanian-Jewish ancestry who became his third wife. A year later, he gave up his doctoral studies and returned home.
In the last decade of his life, Barack Obama Sr. slid slowly into the abyss. He was fired from a series of jobs. He had, as Firstbrook puts it, "a reputation for having a massive ego and a big mouth, both of which grew alarmingly when he started drinking." He was also, according to Ruth's son Mark, abusive to his wife and children, and Ruth eventually left him, taking her sons with him. (NY Review of Books)

President Hussein Obama is not natural born. His father was not a US citizen; he is, by that very fact, disqualified to serve as US President. For those who believe that "natural born" is no longer relevant, you are wrong. Armaros points out in the comments, "The reason the founders have created this requirement was to prevent a British person from assuming US citizenship with the purpose of ascending to higher office and compromise the USA. To prevent a sort of sleeper spy/traitor from getting power in the new nation." Clearly, from Obama's performance, that is a very clear and present danger.

Multiple attempts to get comment from the White House press office have not been returned (here).

An INS investigator, M.F. McKeon, wrote on June 8, 1964: "They (Harvard officials) weren't very impressed with him and asked us to hold up action on his application until they decided what action they could take in order to get rid of him. They were apparently having difficulty with his financial arrangements and couldn't seem to figure out how many wives he had." (more here)

For years, the media and the left have excoriated anyone who questioned the circumstances and events surrounding the birth of the President of the United States. The lack of transparency and honesty only gave rise to more suspicion. And rightly so. One doesn't hand over the reins of power to just anyone, particularly those with an unknown or sketchy past. The dearth of documentation and paperwork led to more speculation. The American people were like Helen Keller and the Obama machine kept moving the furniture. Who is this man, and what is he hiding?

The birth certificate issue became the rallying cry for those of us who questioned the legitimacy of Barack Hussein Obama's eligibility for the oval office. Our media did not vet BHO. In fact, they took it upon themselves to destroy and smear those who did, or tried to.

The release of Barack Hussein Obama I's immigration file is stunning in what it reveals and the questions it poses. BHO I's visa expired August 8, 1961 -- it that why they married? A white girl in a family way with a mixed race child desperate for legitimacy in a culture that condemned such behavior as abject immorality, and a con man from Kenya desperate to stay in the USA? Was the marriage merely a business arrangement (she was 17 when she was knocked up)? She could not have been so savvy as to know that BHO I was a Muslim polygamist. Is that why it was so important to place the ads in the advertisers -- because he was about to be deported?

It is interesting to note that BHO I claims in the documents to have divorced first wife Kezia "verbally." According to the sharia, a man can divorce his wife by repeating it three times.

Despite the fact that BHO I had married Dunham, the government wasn't buying it:

A memo from Lyle H. Dahlim of the INS, written in April, 1961, says the agency &#65533;recommend(s) that Subject be closely questioned before another extension is granted &#65533; and denial be considered. If his USC (United States Citizen) wife tries to petition for him make sure an investigation is conducted as to the bona-fide of the marriage.&#65533;

The child sealed it -- but who was the father? And it bears mentioning that BHO I did not marry a different high school minor whom he impregnated, according to these documents; most probably she went to London for an abortion. But he married Stanley -- why? Immigration status.

The Boston Globe got the immigration file in 2009; why did they sit on it? And who is Heather Smathers (the journalist who requested the FOIA)? (Here)

Documents also show that Obama, Sr. entered the country in 1959, and received several extensions to his visa prior to being denied in July, 1964.

A memo from Lyle H. Dahlim of the INS, written in April, 1961, says the agency &#65533;recommend(s) that Subject be closely questioned before another extension is granted &#65533; and denial be considered. If his USC (United States Citizen) wife tries to petition for him make sure an investigation is conducted as to the bona-fide of the marriage.&#65533;

The wife is Stanley Ann Dunham, the President&#65533;s mother, who married Obama, Sr., in February, 1961.

The documents also show that the CIS investigated the elder Obama as a polygamist, having a wife in Kenya and a &#65533;wife and child in Honolulu.&#65533;

Dahlim&#65533;s memo adds that &#65533;Polygamy is not an excludable or deportation charge as Subject is a non-immigrant.&#65533;

Documents show that Obama, Sr. was denied an extension on his student visa in July, 1964, in part because Harvard University, where Obama, Sr., was a Ph.D. candidate, sought his removal. Obama Sr. eventually left the United States willingly after becoming an illegal alien for remaining in the country past the expiration of his visa.

An INS investigator, M.F. McKeon, wrote &#65533;They (Harvard officials) weren&#65533;t

very impressed with him and asked us to hold up action on his application until they decided what action they could take in order to get rid of him. They were apparently having difficulty with his financial arrangements and couldn't seem to figure out how many wives he had.'
Documents show that Harvard officials considered Obama, Sr. to be a 'slippery character,' and conspired with the INS to have him deported.
Inquiries with the White House were not immediately returned.
The revelation of the handwritten memo mentioning the President's birth comes as lawmakers across the country grapple with so-called 'birther' bills, with Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer vetoing proposed legislation requiring all candidates for any office to produce a birth certificate prior to their name appearing on the ballot. Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal, however, has said he will sign a similar bill.

If he was born August 4, 1961 in a first pregnancy, it is likely that conception occurred 40 weeks previously or so. I make this to be in early November, and wonder how old Stanley Ann Dunham was then, where she was living, with whom, and what level student she may have been.

Obama implied that his father and mother's wedding may not have been properly documented. "How and when the marriage occurred remains a bit murky, a bill of particulars that I have never quite had the courage to explore. There's no record of a real wedding, a cake, a ring, a giving away of the bride. No families were in attendance; it's not even clear that people back in Kansas were informed." Obama writes that in his memoir.

And this, Michelle Obama says that Senior and Anna were never married. She described Anna as "very young and very single when she had him (Obama)." (2nd source)

And this -- There is no evidence whatsoever that Senior and Anna ever lived together anywhere, any time. The living arrangements between the announcement of the wedding and the birth of the child were uncertain. Most likely, Senior remained in his dorm room while Ann lived with her parents. Letters written by acquaintances of Senior during the period 1960-1961 with accompanying photographs do not mention or show Anna at all.

Another interesting note -- BHO I's multiple misrepresentations of his birth year. He mixes it up a lot. Coming from a well-to-do, influential family in Kenya, it is ridiculous to suggest that he didn't know. Perhaps BHO I deliberately and fraudently lied about his date of birth so that he could continue to live in the U.S. -- it leads one to suspect that perhaps his scholoarships or other funding may have been cut off at age 28. Some of his financial backing would have cut off at age 28.

And who was funding Obama Senior? According to Harvard:

Jeff Neal, a spokesman for Harvard University, said that university documents predating the INS file, which was compiled between 1961 and 1965, indicate 'the University's Center for International Affairs faced serious constraints in providing financial support for research by international graduate students in Cambridge, and that these students were required to secure and demonstrate independent and sufficient sources of funding in order to remain on campus.&#65533; (more here at the Independent)

And this curious factoid from The Obamas: The Untold Story of an African Family by Peter Firstbrook:

In 1959, Tom Mboya announced the &#65533;Airlift Africa&#65533; program, with fund-raising assistance from African-American public figures such as Jackie Robinson, Harry Belafonte, and Sidney Poitier, as well as various white liberals. The aim was to allow future Kenyan leaders to study on American campuses. Obama, having left high school without doing his final exams, didn&#65533;t get one of these scholarships. But eventually he prepared for and took the exams, and, with the financial assistance of two American women who were living in Nairobi, he was able to study at the University of Hawaii, in Honolulu. Firstbrook adds, &#65533;The records of Barack&#65533;s move to the United States are incomplete, but it seems that he also received some funding from Jackie Robinson.&#65533; (NY Review of Books)

Add to this the timeline of BHO junior's mother. In October 2008, I published emails concerning the inconsistencies in Stanley Ann Dunham's timeline here:

When public record information from the University of Washington was added to Wikipedia&#65533;s biography of Stanley Ann Dunham (Barack Hussein Obama Jr&#65533;s mother), it was removed in 35 minutes the first time and 34 minutes the second time. Read what Obama&#65533;s team of internet thugs doesn&#65533;t want you to know.

See official emails from U of Hawaii and U (see below)

I'm concerned with the unlikely dates:

Sept 26 1960 First day at U of Hawaii for Ann (Why did she start 6 weeks late?)

One month later - conception

Two months later - drops out of University of Hawaii

Three months later - married

10 months later - back in Washington attending classes at University of Washington

These are implausible dates, and may imply that Ann got pregnant in Seattle and THAT is why her family moved to Hawaii. University of Washington records place Stanley Ann Dunham in Washington State in Aug 1961 so how could she be in Honolulu 2680 miles away birthing Barack the same month.

When public record information from the University of Washington was added to Wikipedia&#65533;s biography of Stanley Ann Dunham (Barack Hussein Obama Jr&#65533;s

mother), it was removed in 35 minutes the first time and 34 minutes the second time. Read what Obama's team of internet thugs doesn't want you to know.

When I published in this post here, speculating as to who might be the real father of BHO Jr., the leftwingers exploded and sought to destroy me with it. So rabid was their response that it reminded me of the military saying, if you are catching flak, you're over your target.

As graduation neared for the class of 1960, Stanley "Ann" Dunham (Barack's mother) had hoped to join many of her classmates at the University of Washington. She was also accepted to the University of Chicago, according to Obama's memoir, the best-selling "Dreams from My Father.", but she popped up instead at the University of Hawaii nearly 6 weeks after the start of the 1960 Fall semester. (See email from U of Hawaii at Manoa below)

In a highly unlikely scenario, she then conceived Barack Hussein Obama Jr. only one month after she started classes Sept 26th 1960. Then, while only two months pregnant in early January 1961, Stanley "Ann" Dunham drops out of college. She then supposedly married Barack Obama Sr. three months after conception and only four months after arriving in Hawaii. And only 10 months after first arriving in Hawaii, she is back at the University of Washington, 2680 miles away. (See email from U of Washington below). Contrary to a massive disinformation scheme by the Obama campaign and the news media, Stanley Ann Dunham did not return to the U of Hawaii until Barack Obama Sr. left the island.

Madelyn Dunham, Barack's maternal grandmother, abruptly left a lucrative career in Seattle WA as VP Bank Officer in the late summer of 1960 to work in Hawaii as an hourly wage bank teller. This afforded her time to raise Barack Hussein Obama Jr. from birth. Madelyn reportedly did not return to her previous salaried banker management level until years later when Ann snatched Barack Jr. to go to Indonesia.

Barack Hussein Obama Jr's mother, Stanley "Ann" Dunham, gave a telling admission while still in Washington State as a recent high school graduate in the summer of 1960 when she told her friends: "I don't need to date or marry to have children". Oddly, although Barack Hussein Obama Sr. was already married with children in Kenya, Ann supposedly married him in order to legitimize her child's birth.

Free Republic has an excellent summation here.

I see "some" hyperbole or exaggeration in writing on this newsgroup.
So here are some friendly rules for writers here (or in everywhere really):

Avoid run-on sentences they are hard to read. Don't use no double negatives. Use the semicolon properly, always use it where it is appropriate; and never where it isn't. Reserve the apostrophe for it's proper use and omit it when its not needed. No sentence fragments. Avoid commas, that are unnecessary. Eschew dialect, irregardless. And don't start a sentence with a conjunction. Hyphenate between sy-llables and avoid un-necessary hyphens.
Write all adverbial forms correct. Don't use contractions in formal writing.
Writing carefully, dangling participles must be avoided. It is incumbent on us to avoid archaisms. Steer clear of incorrect forms of verbs that have snuck in the language. Never, ever use repetitive redundancies. If I've told you once, I've told you a thousand times, resist hyperbole. Also, avoid awkward or affected alliteration. Don't string too many prepositional phrases together unless you are walking through the valley of the shadow of death. "Avoid overuse of 'quotation "marks."'"

Hope that was all clear as ink.

LIBs would have you believe it is impolite to offer up anything-but open ended compromise to an evil which knows none.

That your only choice is but to do Absolutely Nothing before a fearsome evil which has no justification, nor does it seek any.

LIBs decry the sins of man as destroying the world, while both sponsoring and defending the desperate and deliberately Evil men responsible for such distruction

They curse human nature for its unwillingness to practice their virtue.
A virtue based on sacrifice, demanding more sacrifices at every failure, sacrificing the good to the evil, the innocent to the guilty.

In the name of a return to their core values, in the name of Change you can Believe in, LIBs plan to sacrifice everything which they hold as the cause of their plight...

They plan to sacrifice justice to mercy.
They plan to sacrifice independance to unity.
They plan to sacrifice wealth to need.
They plan to sacrifice happiness to duty.
They plan to sacrifice self-esteem to self-denial and self-delusion.
They plan to create a world where everything is owned by everyone and enjoyed by none.

Your obediance is appreciated, and expected.

3000. First radio that got you into DX-ing?

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave

From: Gisle Vanem <snurre-sprett@broadpark.no>

Please folks, tell us about what radio got you into DX-ing. I.e.
which radio was the first "fix". The one that made you pursue DX-ing?

http://www.nnrm.net/Teknisk%20info/Radionette%20CombiStar.htm

Some technical data (translated from the above):

Year of build: 1960 (by Radionette A/S, Oslo, Norway)
Transistors: 2x OC71, 2x OC604 (germanium with long legs).
Frequency bands: LW, MW, 1.6 - 3.3 MHz ("fishery-band" on our lingo since fishermen used it to "phone" home) and SW 49m - 19m bands (continuously).
Price in 1960: NOK 590,- (approx. 90 US$ then).
Power alternatives: 110V, 130V, 150V, 210V, 230V or 7.5V battery pack.
produced: unknown.

Variants in the750001-751600 series had Garrard record-player. While the 755001 had a Star record-player (45 RPM). The first model which came in 1958 had a mix of germanium transistors and tubes.

I remember it had an internal loop antenna hidden around the inside rim of the wooden chassis. So the MW reception and null-effect (figure-of-8) was rather good. It had exactly the same colour as in the picture above (but available several others). It was sturdy built and had a good speaker. Since it also had a battery pack, I could even take it to the beach and play my 45 RPM records.

I remember my first good DX on this radio; Radio Australia (ABC) on the 25m band. As a 12 year old, I couldn't really believe my ears. Got it from my step-mother after she got tired of it. And since FM was long common then (1970), she had no use for it. So, that was some tales of my first radio-love.

Around 1964, my mother got me a Hallicrafter's S-120 at Sears for about $70. I got about 40 countries on that POS, before I moved on to something better. Now, for nostalgia, I have a refurbed Knight Star Roamer, like the S-120, and it is still a dead duck!

My first was a Hallicrafters S-53A

Built in 1951

8 tubes

5 bands, 54 - 1605khz, 2.5 - 6.3Mhz, 6.3 - 16.5Mhz, 13.8 - 33Mhz, 46 - 55Mhz.

$90.99 when purchased.

Variants include S-53 and S-53U with largers IF cans. S-53U international power transformer.

Requires an external antenna -- single wire unbalanced, or balanced ladder line -- and a good ground.

I learned how to tune SSB using the CW tone and offset tuning. Not particularly selective on crowded bands, although it was adequate. And it had a good sound. Full, rich audio. Had a phono input so I could use it as a power amplifier for some of my audio experiments. Pin sockets output so a pair of Brush Clevites could be used for private listening.

I heard more Blues hockey games on that radio than any since, and it was always good listening.

Began listening to BBCWS on that radio. That's where I first heard "Just a Minute," and untold radio dramas.

I gave it away to a colleague in the late 70's. Immediately found and purchased another one, which I still use.

In 5th grade (1965) I got interested in electricity. I moved that summer and a neighbor across the street gave me two ARRL Handbooks, one from the 1940's and one from the 1950's. No ham, no radio, just the books.

Two years later I moved again and this time I was in an apartment with a trash chute in the nearby stairwell. We were on the ground floor, so I could open the hatch as it were and see what was inside.

Someone had a Normende (or was it Nordmende?) AM/FM/SW portable that had been dropped and was now still all connected, but in parts. The front and back were separate, the IF coils were all plastic and broken off at the bottom. It still worked.

About 5 years later, I was given a Halicrafters S-38B which was in one piece and a quantum leap better in performance. Remember this was around 1970, and ten feet of wire would get you the world 24/7.

At the time I had a TTY ASR33 and a dial up modem, probably the only computer hardware within a mile of my home. No noise there.

Geoff.

Wow! A post that is on topic. What's going on here?

My first radio that I began spending hours at a time trying to find distant stations was a Wilco ST7 that my older brother loaned to me when I was a young boy on the farm. Not much to look at now, but it was a source of wonder to me back then.

The first radio that got me into DX'ing belonged to a friend of mine.
It was a 1930's Westinghouse tombstone design (wood cabinet) 3 band with a huge electro-dynamic speaker (electro-magnet). Spent many afternoons listening to BBC, Radio Moscow and the like.

My first receiver was a Radio Shack DX-150A which I still have and it still works.

I still have mine too, and I still hate the tuning. The frg7 was a

Our Heavenly Mother says,
"Be assured that as you use your time to give help and hope to others, your Heavenly Father uses His Time to support you."

REVELATION DELIVERED THROUGH FRANCES M. KLUG
ON MARCH 10,2006 AT 1:22 P.M.

OUR HEAVENLY MOTHER

"I know you do not expect Me to be here with you today. I am your Heavenly Mother.

I have come to give you My Blessing for the service you have accepted, to assist The Heavenly Father in so many ways. Your time is important but, I assure you, as you use the time to support What is good for the Souls of many, many people, but also what example is extended through them that others can follow, and realize how important it is to walk a path aidful for the Souls of a great amount of people.

You live in a time wherein there is so much confusion that is not necessary for the Will of The Creator to be acceptant of, but He loves those created and He Wants All Souls to be returned to from Where They came.

Be assured that as you use your time to give help and hope to others, your Heavenly Father uses His Time to support you.

Many of Us speak often through This Gift of Divine Love. We All appreciate your participation and your very quiet act of love, so as I close at this time, I want you to know: You have accepted a task that, hopefully, will help your Soul one day glow greater than It would if you just acted in a manner and way pleasing to just you.

Many of Us Here smile and say, 'We All send Our Love to all of you.'"

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

My very first was a crystal radio out of my grandmothers attic. My uncles had built the coils out of old oatmeal boxes and the spider coils were wood and dowels, one VLF spider took up a good portion of a wall.

It used an old cats whisker crystal, which I changed to one of the "new" germanium diodes.

It was actually amazing, what that homebrew set could pick up and pump into an old set of military headphones.

My next was an old military shortwave which almost took two men to carry ... it was made by Hammarlund is all I remember, other than it was a big as a large suitcase and had a dial plate the size of a small plate ... it probably drew enough power to run a dozen homes! The top of the case would flip up and the glow of the filaments would impart a warm red glow to an area close around, in a dark room.

They certainly don't make radios like they used to, just the radio itself was fun back then!

My mother was in the Catholics' Church Altar Society, so she organized rummage sales and whatnot, though her I was able to experience a whole range of military and civilian radios. I even had a couple of Atwater Kents, if I had they now, they would be worth a fortune! One was TRF and did damn good!

There is much to complain about in America, the open borders, the feminized men, the homosexuals, the rapant perversions, sicko mass murders, etc.

But, in pockets of American, on back roads, in small towns, in quiet and sleepy little villages, even sparsely spread throughout the worst city, are men of the spirit of 1776, patriots. These are men, which when you stand upon their shoulders, you can see the true and just course to navigate with steady hand ... men which each and every one of them is worth a dozen of the plastic store front manikins who attempt to pose as men ... and then there are the women of rugged pioneer spirit and strong blood who were born to be a match.

Still, now and then, you meet such an individual which actually make you proud to be a human being ... men who will only fight just and sane wars, who with risk limb and life to aid the underdog, the less endowed, the less fortunate ... true heros, not steroid dummies playing sports. They wouldn't spit on obama ... THEY'D SHIT ON HIM and his kind!

GOD BLESS AMERICA! And, DAMN THE SISSYS' AND THE TORPEDOES!

After hearing strange signals on some toy multiband radios, my first receiver was an Allied A-2509 that Radio Shack had on sale in the late 60's, about the time they split with Allied Radio. Only covered four bands - SW Broadcast bands on 6, 9, 11 & 15 MHz, no SSB. Cut grass for weeks to earn the money....

My parents through the radio away while I was in college (and using a Panasonic RF-2200). I always missed that radio, so I bought one in great shape, last year, off eBay. It won't replace my Icom, but it still has a place in my memories.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

Well, now-a-days, they are antiques, and a restored Atwater Kent is usually worth thousands to hardcore collectors.

But, they were just beautiful radios. They were built of heavy metal with artistic styling and for that time, they were top notch. Here are some images of some Atwater Kents, but to really appreciate one, you have to own it and get the whole hands on:

I see . Incidentally I do have an old A-K model 40-something . It is contained in a wooden box with a sliding lid . The wood looks like a real mahogany . Never thought it can be SO valuable to some people .
Amazing . . .

Speaking of that if anyone ever comes across an S38-B with an added isolation transformer, large silicon diodes as noise limiters, odd looking dial cord (may have been restrung by now) and a tuning knob with a chunk out of it, it may be mine.

I gave it away in the 1980's and am sorry I did. :-)

It was last seen in the Washington, DC area.

A neighbour threw away a naff guitar amplifier. Grabbed it. Stripped out the chassis and changed the front end preamp into a simple TRF receiver, using parts from a discarded television. Swopping bands meant plugging in different coils mounted in a valve holder. Spent hours at night tuning around with little idea of propagation, or even what frequency I was tuned to. I was just amazed to be able to hear signals from much of the world

My parents would have fainted if they understood that, at twelve years old, I was messing with open mains wiring and 350v anode supply, but it triggered a long term interest in radio and electronics

Thanks to OP for raising an interesting question

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

(snips)

My first was a Hallicrafters S-39 Sky Ranger given to me by my Uncle Pete in about 1974, like this one:

http://rigreference.com/rig/2775-Hallicrafters_S_39_Sky_Ranger

By that time it was pretty long in the tooth, and I did not know much about radios - and one day while I was using it, it started sparking and smoking under the hood. I considered it a loss, and it became lost in the shuffle of the years - but I remmeber it fondly and wish I still had it. It was followed by a Realistic Astronaut-8, an amazingly good portable radio when used in a quiet area.

The FCC rules permit TV antennas where shortwave antennas are banned.
You can use the giant Terk as part of a much bigger "stealth" HF antenna system.

Not agree, they don't interfere, they just want equal rights with regards to marriage.

Sorry, I can't find any correlation with the subject.

The relation between being gay and child abuse has not been proven, so again, your statement is not relevant.

I think it is dangerous for establishing a good society to use supposed statistics on a single person or some persons. I know, on a statistical basis there are differences among various groups (think of latino's, blacks, jews, muslims, native Americans, gays, etc).

However the difference in mean values with respect to the standard deviation is too small to apply on a single person or a small group.

When I had to apply the (supposed) statistics, I have to abandon professional and non-professional relationships with many people I know. Several are black, white, Spanish speaking, muslim, gay, etc....

So best is to use judgment instead of prejudice.

Wim

Wimpie - the United States has officially abandoned judgment, objectivity and science in favor of prejudice and ignorance and religious fantasy. We are now the most backward and ignorant nation on the planet, our philosophy now grounded roughly in the year 1327, and regressing rather quickly to even earlier epochs. This John Smith guy is a glowing symptom of that sickness which has overcome our nation. You folks in Europe would be best to just write us off.

LIBs. What price their Vision?

LIBs have decried the sins of man as destroying the world.
They have cursed human nature for its unwillingness to practice their virtue. A virtue based on sacrifice, demanding more sacrifieces at every successive disaster. In the name of a return to their core values, they have sacrificed all those evils which they held as the cause of their plight...

They have sacrificed justice to mercy.
They have sacrificed independance to unity.
They have sacrificed reason to blind faith in partisanship.
They have sacrificed wealth to need. They have sacrificed happiness to duty. They have sacrificed self-esteem to self-denial and self-delusion.

This is a crock of shit, and it's not nearly as simple as "that."
When are you demagogues going to abandon your simplistic "one-size-

? The Sangean ATS-909'x' is a DSP Radio; and http://www.grove-ent.com/909x.html maybe the DSP processing function greatly 'negates' the apparent IF Filter operation. !
http://www.universal-radio.com/catalog/portable/2909.html
Can you Switch 'Off' the "DSP Decoder IC" and listen to the Radio in 'Analog' Mode ?
http://www.ccrane.com/radios/shortwave-radios/sangean-ats909X-shortwave-radio.aspx
Have you first talked to RadLabs about this problem ? -before- Returning the Radio ?

Please folks, tell us about what radio got you into DX-ing. I.e.
which radio was the first "fix". The one that made you pursue DX-ing?

How so many of you started with fancy stuff like Heathkit, Halli, National, etc. is amazing to me.

My first "DX" was good old AMBCB DX on a basic AA5 table radio, listening from Salt Lake City to stations like WWL, WOAI, XERB, KMOX, KFI, KFRC, KNBR, WSM, etc. This was when I was 9 or 10. Don't think I had (or even saw) my first SW radio till I was about 14, when I was amazed to hear Radio Moscow, Radio Peking, BBC and so forth. I know, those are all big strap stations, but at the time I had no idea they were out there, let alone anything else.
That radio was a Longines Symphonette four bander. I have two of them in my collection now. They still bring back good memories, but I have tiny Chinese pocket radios that can hear more, better (but of course don't sound as good).

The user has no control over when the decoder IC is engaged. Yes, I have talked with Radio Labs. They think this is normal operation, but I don't see how it can be.

That starts by being exposed to DX at someone else's hands. My own experience was in my grandfather's ham shack. He had (I have it now) a Hammarlund BC-794 SuperPro. And and RME, the model of which escapes me. While I watched, he chewed the rag with a guy in South America, tuned in Radio Moscow, and the BBC. I only had a Trancel 81 at the time. And living in the suburbs of St Louis, I only had a decent ear on the locals. And WLS, of course.

But, from that experience, I learned to pull in WLS by putting the Trancel near wall where the a/c line ran to the wall socket.

From there, it was to a better radio. In my case, a Halli.

Hi there again,

The reason this test does not work with this radio is that in SSB mode, the radio is automatically set to the narrow bandwidth and the switch becomes inoperable, hence there is no difference. However, when you tune to a strong station in AM mode on narrow and then detune by several KHz so that the station is inaudible and you switch to wide, the station is audible again. This suggests the switch is working, but the bandwidths used are not that different to make for an audible difference. Several users of the stock radio have reported similar behavior (i.e., not much difference between wide and narrow bandwidths).
Thanks again for your suggestion.

Neither side has an interest in that. There's no political leverage in it.

Like everything, politics is a continuum. Not so much a number line extending to infinity in either direction, but more an Einsteinian shell that curves back on itself. Go in any single direction long enough, and you end up where you started. Go far enough to the right, and you end up standing next to your brother on the left. And vice versa.

The truth is, that the sniping from diametrically opposed combatants is the simple result of neither side going far enough. So that they come to a meeting.

In that instance, the demagoguery stops.

But, as I said, there's no political will for that. Because there's no leverage in it.

Hello Ramon,

Really strange, as with the "old" 909, the difference is clearly noticable, even with the tone setting on news.

They Sangean guys probalby did something weird, as normally you work on "wide" only in case of interference from an adjacent station or noise you switch to the narrow setting to get a readable signal, but with reduced audio quality.

I checked it on several stations. Now (00:00h UTC), Radio Havana reaches Netherlands on an indoor antenna (6000 kHz). Did you test it also on a weak (noisy) station?

Maybe you can contact a radio amateur to do some measurements on the radio to find out what is the root cause for the behavior.

With kind regards,

Wim

? Maybe that is part of the Problem; the "Tone" Switch on the Right Side of the Radio needs to be set a "Music"; for you to Hear an Audio 'difference' between the Wide and Narrow IF Filters !

No, it would appear being able to explain your simpleminded bullshit is beyond your ability.

Metaphor -
A figure of speech in which an implied comparison is made between two unlike things that actually have something in common. Adjective:
metaphorical.

A metaphor expresses the unfamiliar (the tenor) in terms of the familiar (the vehicle). When Neil Young sings, "Love is a rose," "rose" is the vehicle for "love," the tenor. (In cognitive linguistics, the terms target and source are roughly equivalent to tenor and vehicle.)

So, you historically illiterate bigot, tell us what Herman Cain and the Narional Socialist German Workers Party actually have in common.

Hey, Joe Dumbass, it ain't me that's adding unrelated newsgroups. I generally pay little attention to the "newsgroups", assuming that most adults know better. I'm not the newsgroup police.

When I post I post to 1 newsgroup, what these greasy pieces of shit does is thier business.

That's not it. I always keep the radio on the "music" tone setting, as this gives the best audio fidelity.

Especially Obama. People argue over where he was allegedly "born."
Obama probably wasn't "born" at all. He was more likely _grown_ in a US Army bio-weapons laboratory in Fort Detrick, Maryland.

But you got to hand it to Obama and his real backers. If it was their mission to utterly destroy the US and EU, they're doing a bang-up job of it. It will probably lead to world war three, nuclear armageddon, germ warfare, and all that fun stuff. But what the heck? If that's what it takes to kill all of the zionists, it's a small price to pay.

http://www.satx.rr.com/news/topic/article/rr/10374903/44937340/Is_This_Caylees_Daddy

Now we can see how it is done,If Gradma Duggan dont file a civil suit against the Anthonys for the murder of Caylee Duggan,Dr G wont start to working on the cold case of who killed Caylee and they will all get off scott free!

It was an old family tradition to dope the children up so the adults could enjoy the silence(bliss) Dotors use to prescribe paraguart for this task but the Anthonys found out that Zanex woulked even better then when the Zanex became hard to get Nurse Cindy whipped up a batch of homemade chloroform.

This is why the body was not reported to the police because it would have shown evidence of an overdose,The whole family concocted a senareio and Casey took the fall,now that she was proven not guilty the other two adults are targets!

You only need to find out why the state had to show evidence of chloroform in their request from Vass,the home PC and its presence in the trunk.

The investigators found a gatorade bottle with the homemade Chloroform along with a testosdron needle they should have found dna on it from both George and Caylee this was the smoking gun they needed to convict Cindy with but the state chose to go after Casey instead,because of the familys diabolical scam to hide the evidence and Casey rehersed lies even Lee hope Casey come up with what to say or do incase the law says show us Caylee.Caseys lies protected her family from not something she did but from something the whole family was involved in!

Them sunworshippers stick togeather and protect one another untill they need to sacrifice one of their own for the cause!

So when in SSB mode a 'narrow' filter is functional ? Or it is just like the one in AM ?

LIBERALISM for the Morally Challenged:
http://www.strangecosmos.com/images/content/14028.JPG

LIBs want you to live in FEAR for having abandoned your only means of survival, and GUILT for knowing that you have done so willingly.
They NEED YOU to do Absolutely Nothing so that the Desperate and the Deliberately Evil may Prosper.

The TRUELY Evil are abetted by the Venal and the WEAK. PERIOD.
History repeats itself, first as Tragedy, then as FARCE !!!

"to leave now we would send a message to terrorists and other potential adversaries around the world that they can change our policies by killing our people.
It would be open season on Americans."
-- Bill Clinton '93
just before he pulled out of Somalia.

To abandon this area now -- and to rely only on efforts against alQaeda from a distance -- would significantly hamper our ability to keep the pressure on al Qaeda, and create an UNACCEPTABLE RISK of additional attacks on our homeland and our allies.

-- OBAMA'09 just before he bugged out of the area, ceding Pakistan to our Adversaries.

LIB's plead for a Morality which holds COMPROMISE as it's standard of Value, making it possible to judge Virtue on the basis of the number of Values which one is willing to Betray.

A betrayal beyond all historical precident, deserves a similar banner.

Yeah,,,, in fact of the business, I own an old Longines Symponette clock/light/AM/FM radio, it works too.I bought it for two or three dollars years ago at the Goodwill store.It is kind of a weird looking radio.It has a telescoping tube on it with a light mounted on top of the tube.You might find some pictures on the net of those Longines Symponette radios.

LIBeralism is a mental illness that spreads itself politcally.
Such would NOT be a problem (or tolerated) in a society with a long memory...

"We'll actually have to work very hard to kill as many people in the 21st century.
What's the difference?
This time, you think the victim could be you," Clinton'07

LIBs cater to the Desperate and Deliberately Evil, those who hide in dark corners of the world half-begging half-threatening to be ceded the unearned, to seize the undeserved.

"Iran is the only country in the world that has now had six elections since the first election of President Khatami (in 1997)......
In every single election, the guys I identify with got two-thirds to 70 percent of the vote. There is no other country in the world
I can say that about, certainly not my own.
-- Bill Clinton'05

The TRUELY EVIL are abetted by the Venal and the WEAK. LIBs.
LIBs have elevated this process to an institution, enshrining Victimhood as their highest Ideal.

We can't be so fixed on our desire to preserve the rights of ordinary Americans..."
Arch-traitor Bill Clinton'93

LIBs need you to deny the obviousness of the Truth, lest their whole ponzi scheme collapse.

If a President of the United States ever lied to the American people he should resign.
-- William J. Clinton, 1974

This is precisely why LIBs need you to believe in the unreal, the incomprehensible, the inconceivable and the impossible.

This is precisely why LIBs want you to quiver over the hypothesis of Global Warming while dismissing the immediate peril of Nuclear Iran and the terror they export. LIBs are at war with Reality.

This is precisely why LIB Strategic Insanity can and MUST be defeated.

LIBs, what price their vision?

This is Clinton's Bridge to the 21st Century.

A bridge which is no bridge because it span no river.
A legacy which is no legacy because it embody no legitimacy.
A world safe for socialism in his image which is no world because no one's rights are secure.

The only thing necessary for EVIL to prosper is for Good Men to do Absolutely Nothing.
It's to late to change the world with dreams and talk.

DESERVE FREEDOM. Defeat LIB Strategic Insanity.

Why did Spartans, Persians, Macedonians and Romans fight?
What motivated Bonaparte to take on the Austrians, the Ottomans, the Russians and the English? What caused Imperial Japan to attempt to conquer Asia?

Almost a thousand years ago, Genghis Khan provided a candid and classic answer: "Man's highest joy is victory: to conquer his enemies; to pursue them; to deprive them of their possessions; to make their beloved weep; to ride on their horses; and to embrace their wives and daughters."

LIBs plead for a Morality which holds COMPROMISE as its standard of Value, making it possible to judge Virtue on the basis of the number of Values which one is willing to Betray.

http://www.amazon.com/Roots-Obamas-Rage-Dinesh-DSouza/dp/1596986255
The Roots of Obama's Rage

The real Obama is a man shaped by experiences far different from those of most Americans; he is a much stranger, more determined, and exponentially more dangerous man than you'd ever imagined. He is not motivated by the civil rights struggles of African Americans in the 1960s—those battles leave him wholly untouched. He is not motivated by the socialist or Marxist propaganda that hypnotized a whole generation of wooly-minded academics and condescending liberals—those concepts also leave him cold.

What really motivates Barack Obama is an inherited rage—an often masked, but profound rage that comes from his African father; an anticolonialist rage against Western dominance, and most especially against the wealth and power of the very nation Barack Obama now leads. It is this rage that explains the previously inexplicable, and that gives us a startling look at what might lie ahead.

In The Roots of Obama's Rage you'll learn: Why Obama's economic policies are actually designed to make America poorer compared to the rest of the world Why Obama will welcome a nuclear Iran Why Obama sees America as a rogue nation—worse than North Korea The real reason Obama banished a bust of Winston Churchill from the White House and ordered NASA to praise

the scientific contributions of Muslims Why Obama would like to make America's superpower status a thing of the past

You and your type keep cross posting to multiple groups, including:

rec.radio.shortwave, talk.politics.guns, alt.conspiracy, rec.sport.golf,alt.freemasonry.

Please remove the groups you are NOT in.

The childish political crap, usually started by a troublemaker named
'John Smith' is spreading like a cancer.

If you have to reply to multiple personality dis-information agents, then remove, at the very minimum, rec.radio.shortwave. The bullshit is drowning that group.

Please, be SELECTIVE where you send your replies.

It took a whooping 49 hours and 37 messages in this thread before

Global thermonuclear holocaust sounds like a lot more fun.

Bub

P.S. The doublethink term "antisemite" was invented by the zionists to brainwash the ignorant and gullible into believing that descendants of Eastern European Caucasians that had "magically converted" to talmudic (i.e., white racist criminals with a superiority complex) so called "judiasm" in medieval times, had also been miraculously transformed into "semites." This brainwashing came in handy for the zionists (mainly US/British so called "royalty," ruthless criminals and imperialist aggressors that have installed their brutal zionist occupation governments in almost every country in the western world, and are attempting to impose the same hideous military and industrial domination in the eastern world), when they invaded Palestine and began setting up what has become their universally loathed nuclear armed, uber-hard target, terrorist military base in the Middle East, Ersatz "israel." It really is just another US Military base. There are thousands of them around the world.

The hope is that Obama and his real backers have given the zionists "enough rope to hang themselves" by showering these psychopaths with trillions upon trillions of fiat tax-free dollars, and expanding their terrorist military invasions into predominantly Arabic-speaking countries for their blood-for-oil and blood-for-opium so called "wars." By the summer of 2012, many expect nuclear war to break out, probably over some false flag (or foreign attack from who knows whom) "dirty bomb" incident. Once nuclear war begins, within one hour it will all be over. So when you see the bright flash, duck and cover, place your head firmly between your legs and kiss your ass goodbye.

In New York City, don't throw any day old newspapers in the public trash cans/litter baskets.
http://www.libertypost.org

Here in Jackson,Missy Sippy, you can throw anything in the public trash containers, we don't give a sheet what you throw away.

When it gets real cold, put some newspapers under your clothes to help break that cold wind and keep warm.That is an old HOBO trick.

I am getting tired just making ends meet and a friend told me over the holiday weekend that the ebay seller bigapple59 makes $175,000 a year. He buys a radio and then as soon as he gets it he sells it for usually double what he paid for it. I would be happy to just make $50,000 a year doing that. I am just not totally sure how not to screw up doing it and going into debt.
Can anyone share some advice on how to do 1/3 as well as that seller? I am a copier repair technician so I am not afraid of electromechanical work.

Thanks,
Vince

I like to go for walks. In the summer the cool evenings are the time to walk.

Just take all your old newspapers with you, as you walk by the mayors yard, chief of police, sheriff, drop 'em off ... I am sure those good ole' boys won't mind dropping 'em off at a recycle spot, I mean, being in the spirit of public service and all ... they can use the tax payer

No one likes change but a baby with a wet diaper, and, depending on the baby, they may not even care for it that much!

Newspapers are too much overhead with large presses, delivery of a bulky product, taxed too much, government forever in the shadows attempting to exert control and control news, etc., etc.

I am afraid newspapers have seen there day ... I will sorely miss them, there is nothing like reading a nice large page and not having to manipulate mice, buttons, touch screens, key boards, etc.

I am sure my paper will soon be charging to download enewspapers for your favorite reading device/cell-phone, if they already aren't ... I just chucked the newspaper a few years ago when all it became was a cheerleader for the status quo shadow government ...

I would be surprised if your average Bung-Hole Bob or Vagina-Violating Victoria even noticed ... they were probably watching a football game ...

Like it or lump it, those figures are pretty much the true picture.

However, the asian mind is a true "tape recorder", if you alter the IQ test to conditions where data must be deduced, analyzed, is not familiar to the test subjects, etc., the asian, no. American indian and european stand on a much more level playing field.

However, when you consider that negros have an average IQ of approx. 85 and make up roughly 36% of the American population, you can see how a single race can skew figures ...

If you only average the Americans of european ancestry, they, of course, match the european figures ... same as taking an average across the black American population, and they begin to mimic the results of the african nations. And, of course, the American asian mimic the results of the asian nations ...

Of course this all flies in the face of political correctness and is why you see this type of information discussed in newsgroups, blogs, etc. and NOT the government funded and political funded main scream media ...

If you are getting your information from main scream media, they are making morons of you and not even kissing you when done!

JS

I see . If that is the case,then the AM mode has a problem switching from 'Wide'-to-'Narrow' filter.May be Radiolabs (or the actual manufacturer somewhere in PRC) had a QC issue . Who knows . New product , new questions . . .

I still think that half acre of land I bought (I still own it too) in Putnam County,Florida back around 1991 and my idea I had of putting some used mobile homes on it and renting them out to college girls at University of Florida in Gainesville is a Good Idea.I had plans of moving to Florida and having my own Harem Scarem.I am a little bit too much beyond the pale to mess with it nowadays.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

> Yes, he

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

We have been informed by the readers of rec.radio.shortwave that a | recent (2008) attempt to update these documents and post them (or links | to them) at regular intervals, has since been abandoned, so the project | is once again open to a sincere and motivated volunteer. |

We are interested in offering any technical support necessary to get these articles updated and automatically posted again at regular intervals. This would include establishing contact with the original

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Well he might have $175k a year in sales, but he only makes money after paying for his purchases, eBay & paypal commission fees. But mostly you just hunt for radio equipment that works or that you can repair then sell it on eBay or eHam.net or QRZ.com. A good place to find equipment that works is estate sales that you can pick up equipment for a low price and sell high.

The first thing you want to do to get the best sales is to get the eBay top seller award. The way you do that is sell a lot of items at cost or below cost with one day shipping and encourage people to leave feedback with seller ratings. Once you get top seller you get an automatic 20% reduction in eBay fees and a top seller badge on every listing in the eBay products listings.

As long as U.S. companies keep on moving out of the US and heading to other nations, we will become increasingly more dependent on other nations to do what U.S. companies have traditionally done.

I think this was a design choice and it is described in the user's manual (I am told the Sangean 909 works the same way). On most radios I have, the bandwidth selection is independent of listening mode. The Drake SW8 and R8B are exemplary in this regard, but they were much more expensive rigs.

The first radio that got me into DXing was my family's Packard Bell 5 tube AM tabletop that sat on the kitchen counter. I spent hours looking for out of town MW stations. Eventually the radio became mine and I put it in my bedroom. Here's a picture of it:

http://i859.photobucket.com/albums/ab154/myfotobuk/Packard_Bell_5R1_1956.jpg

My first SW radio was a used Nordmende Transista I found in a local TV repair shop. It had MW, FM, and 1 SW band that only covered 1.6 up to about 5 mhz. Here's a picture of it:

Some receivers had the option to operate in 'narrow filter' while in AM mode . Some only work in the 'narrow' while switched to SSB or CW .
For instance-- Palstar-30 can be switched to wide/narrow in any mode , user selectable . Some radios CANNOT do that . Unfortunately , these rigs may require some 'internal surgical operation' --that is if it can be done at all .

Some of the early European transistor gadgets weren't so tiny at all !
Many of them weighed even more than the usual tabletop radios ( because of the batteries,of course) .

The SW coverage was 5.9-to-9.8MHz (in one band!) . Obviously , it was not very simple to tune in a weak station on a such a small dial .

No one is implying we should ignore crime when black people commit it. But to say they only commit it because they are black is racist and ignorant. We are all equal in God's eyes and we all have a purpose.

Have several small 'pocket' Transistor AM Radios to listen to during the summers camping and fishing around Weatherbee Lake, {Mud Hole} near Tracy, CA -circa- late 1950s and listening to KTRB and KSTN.

My "First Radio" that I bought and paid for myself was a Hitachi (TRF AM/MW Portable Radio) Model TH-812.
http://www.transistor.org/collection/hitachi/hitachi9.html

The first Radio that I make {assembled} for myself was a HeathKit GR-64 {4-Tube} Shortwave Listener's (SWL) Radio
http://oak.cats.ohiou.edu/~postr/bapix/GR64.html

That was followed by building a HeathKit
GC-1A "Mohican" {Transistorized} General Coverage Receiver

Placing a simple tariff on good coming in by air, land and water, and manufactured/assembled overseas, would cure the problem, the tariff(s) would simple be calculated to make it more profitable to have Americans producing the products.

I don't give a damn why they do a crime, any more than I would care about the reason that a serial killer murders, a child molester molests, etc.

We simple need to face real facts and figures and imprison the buggers doing the crimes.

And who cares what reason there is a disproportionate amount of negros committing crimes? It is the fact that they are committing crimes which is of importance. I am sure if they have respect for their race, they will clean house themselves and beat the hell out of the negros doing the crimes and giving their race a bad name, right?

What ever gods plan is for them, I am sure it is NOT stealing others property, and/or NOT committing violent acts or murder on others or others races, right?

I certainly don't think there are a lot of white people running around in blackface and committing crimes, RIGHT?

You make a good point ... actually the "first radio which got me into SW" was probably the family SW ...

I just read more into the original post than was there and responded with "my first SW radio."

I can't remember what the SW radio my dad has was, but it was a BIG

That's an interesting position.

I recall a few years ago a individual in the NJ government was entering improper data into the birth certificate records database, then illegal aliens would show up asking to get their "birth certificate" which the clerk would check the records, find the data entered, and happily issue a certified copy of a Birth Certificate that didn't' exist, except in the computer on fraudulent data.

So tell me, NJ issued those birth certificates, where they True and Correct?

Why is it Hawaii can't seem to find the original?

Why is it there is a serious question about the registration number that shows up on the document Obama has produced?

Seems to me given the irregularities that further investigation is warranted if only due to his security clearances. Certainly such would occur with anyone else obtaining or holding a TS clearance should such irregularities arise. So why is he "special"?

Huh? You could get a regular size with a handle 6 transistor radio or a pocket 6 transistor radio. The regular ones used a lot of cells to get to 9 VDC, sure, but they were never meant to be a pocket size portable.

Nope, not a one, not a single "expert" has said any such thing and you cannot name one who has. It isn't even a possibility since the issuer has authenticated it... ipso facto, moron. The very act of issuing it makes it true and correct.

The State of Hawaii.

Nothing to do with this case. Hawaii released the original record filed in 1961.

> So tell me, NJ issued those birth certificates, where they True and Correct?

No because unlike Obama's they did not reflect the original record.

Umm, who said it couldn't find it? It did and released it. Case is closed, fuzznuts.

There is no such question.

Seems to me you're full of shit as usual. Your denial does not create a real doubt about the document, but about your sanity,

No, it would do no such thing. The state certification would be accepted.

He is "special" in the historical sense that he made history by being the first and only presidential candidate in US history ever to actually document through his birth certificate that he meets the natural born citizen requirement. Case closed.

juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

http://www.devilfinder.com/find.php?q=The+First+Transistor+Radios

I don't remember the name of it, but back in the middle 1950s, I ordered a little transistor radio that was made in Kearney,Kansas.It didn't have a speaker, it had an earphone hard wired to the radio.I think I paid $10.00 for that radio.It wasen't worth a Sh!t! and I mean that Literally, that POS! wouldn't hardly pick up Anything at all!.There used to be ads in Popular Science and Popular Mechanics and Science & Mechanics and Mechanix Illustrated magazines about those radios.
I still have some of those old magazines here, later on I will look and see what the name of that POS! so-called 'radio' is.
Kearney,Kansas, y'all don't know Sh!t! about building radios, and that is a FACT!

No but they are white people committing crimes so the issue isn't race, it's poverty. And yes I admit a lot of black people are poor but note how some

It's a lot of things. Poverty is one of them....as is perceived lack of opportunity...social and economic environment...lack of jobs...welfare and other social services becoming looked at as an entitlement....education....non viability in the workplace due to lack of job skills....

Is race a part of it......you betcha' but not the genetic part of race other than skin color. Makes it too easy for folks to discriminate but, yes, indirectly, race is at the core of much of the above.

Granted, it's been decades since I had the radio, but I could swear the SW coverage was approximately as I stated. I remember hearing mostly marine, utility, 160 and 80 meter ham stations, but very few SW broadcasters. Maybe the picture is not the exact model I had, but it looked just like it. Of course, maybe my memory is wrong. It had very nice audio due to the wooden case underneath the faux leather.

Last time I checked, the courts didn't let you off because you were poor, it simply made no difference.

Do you have any links or data which indicates that a crime is not committed if you are poor?

Yep. Jobs would get the revenue we need.

The president says we didn't spend enough on the stimulus plan (1/3 of which was tax cuts). The Republicans say it's the tax cuts which weren't big enough.

Either way - where are the jobs they promised?

obama said he would get us out of war ...

But skin color doesn't make you do something, it's how you were raised. But yeah you hit the nail on the coffin, the welfare state is making people more dependent on government and think it's they who are entitled to it. No, welfare is supposed to help those less needy but they should still look for work.

No but look at all the poor people who don't commit crimes. True, there is a lot of white guilt out there. I say we should all receive the same penalties when we commit a crime. Skin color shouldn't matter.

Well it still doesn't mean every black person wants to kill whitey. Just the racist black people like the Black Panthers etc.

It may surprise people but I am against all radicalism be it black, white, whatever. As Obama said when he had credibility you are all American's.
There's no red state or white state, just one country.

Actually it is the rich elite taking their corps/company overseas and attempting to sell the cheap goods, made their, to people who are now impoverished by the jobs which have been lost ... it is going to get a lot worse, and your house, one of your family, one of your friends, or even you, yourself are slated to a victim of this, somewhere, at sometime ...

Is it "just because most of them JUST HAPPEN TO BE negro?"

From your posts, that looks like a damn outright lie!

You seem in defense of negros to the point where you seem to feel they should be forgiven/crimes-ignored!

The epidemic numbers are not "every negro", obviously!

JUST WAY TO MANY!!! And, we need to take a bunch and make examples of them to discourage the masses and end the epidemic ...

I don't think anyone should be forgiven for their crimes. But saying people

Lightening does strike the same place twice, but not as often as it strikes it only once ...

Worse, negros support one another in crime against "whitie", and not only whites, here where I live, the asians have formed gangs SPECIFICALLY to battle negro gangs ... the news won't tell you that ...

Ever see a cop try to get information out of negro eyewitnesses when a negro criminal has done the crime -- WON'T happen! My dad was a cop when I was young, I seen this first hand.

negros skulls are thicker, negros intestines are shorter, resulting in them passing more of lifes byproducts out through the skin ... the differences are significant, right up to them having lower IQ's.

If you are thinking the differences between caucasians and negros end with what your eyes tell you ... they have black eyes, they have kinky hair (nappy headed hoes as Imus would say), skin is black, voices are generally deeper, etc., you are SADLY mistaken ... but in this politically correct society, you almost have to have a friend which is a MD to have knowledge of this, or hold discussion on the matter!

You seem to be a product of the "GOVERNMENT SCHOOLS" which has done a nice spin doctor routine on your head ... boy, are you in for a lesson now!

You seem to have bio-physical information that is very strange, to say the least . Where in the world did you hear about 'short intestines'?
I'm pretty sure everyone in this newsgroup is incompetent about such 'facts' . Will you please enlighten us !

Did the subject suddenly switch from topic of crime, as indicated in the topic, itself, or is that just you are attempting to justify your support of negro criminals through hair splitting?

My son, when he was in middle school, made a friend whose father is a doctor. The father became one of my best friends, and his family a friend of my families ... he, the doctor, has always claimed I just became friends with him to get cheap medical advice/treatment for my family ... I can say one thing in support, IT DOESN'T HURT! And, a physician who is your friend still makes house calls :-)

A couple of people in my family are also in the medical field, one niece has just become an x-ray tech ...

He was a county corner earlier in his life, and is now, that he has retired his private practice.

We used to have great discussion over a bottle of Jim Beams, until the wife and I quit drinking, and now he and his wife has. We still have pretty good discussions though.

JS

It is a miracle people are so stupid as to put up with the theft of their tax dollars in such a way. It seems it takes about $40,000 or more to keep one in prison for a year.

You could send one to a pretty decent college, room and board included, for that sum ...

I'll bet if you just made a deal with crook and paid him ~$20,000 a year if he didn't get caught doing anymore crime, you'd cut crime A LOT MORE than this wasteful system that currently exists!
ROFLOL!

One well kept secret and horror is that, American slave owners applied the same animal husbandry they did to the breeding and raising of livestock to their slaves. Sometimes there were not so careful in abstaining from too closely related subjects ... these abnormal defects caused by too close of inbreeding are not all that rare ...

The evils of that era are pretty disgusting, but glossed over very quickly in a politically correct society where you are not supposed to notice such things, discuss them, or mention them ... and it is beginning to look like you will be threatened with punishment if you are so brazen to mention them!

Go figure ... some of the whites are pretty inbred, and seem to have a fondness for public servant offices ...

Those who don't learn from history are doomed to repeat it ...

JS

Actually, I don't use Google, at all, thank you. But you missed my point.

Your numbers are due for a revision. Many of them are outdated.

As is your choice of language.

Sorry. Excellent point.

However, in a PC world, have you ever noticed, they seem to discourage such figures.

And, I use "google" as a verb, picked it up from the younger crowd.
However, even being a rebel, I must acknowledge, google is the "best" search engine in the world, a dangerous one, but the best.

But, what I mean, for example, plug a term like "percent prison population negro" or, even "percent prison population black" and gee!
Suddenly "google breaks!" The faithful and precise tool fails to give you what you are looking for!

Now, there could be many reasons for this:

1) The politically correct government discourages this unpolitical,
"uncorrect" action!

2) Google, itself, discourage such.

3) People have suddenly became daft and no longer want such facts and figures.

4) Etc., etc., etc.

Or, in the end, it is just what it looks like, the CIA, and others, are involved in your life much more than most realize. And, "they" mean to control your very thoughts and what information you have access to. Etc.

I think that is a reason to scream in the streets of the dangers and evil of government, their tactics, their logic, their evil goals, that republicrats and democans are EVIL in magnitudes, etc.

And, then, I have to spend an hour, or longer, in pursuit of the facts and figures I want, and battle government to keep from "moronizing" me ... how easy it would be to simply take the "blue pill." (like in "The Matrix" we really DO live in ...)

JS

The truth will never be racism. However, we will never run out of ignorance or lack of mental resources, is a moot point.

you. That was my point.

If welfare were up to me, you would need a doctor's prescription to stay on it. While you are on it, if you are able to work, you will get free training to make you vable in the workplace. After a period of time, the ride is over. Get a job or starve. I, for sure, don't want my money going to support someone who hangs out at baby mama's house playing video games, having the latest smartphone and wearing new Nikes.

His so-called sources of 'scientific information' are even more bizzare than his own 'observations and experiments' . For instance: Dr. Claudius Buchanan found one group of 'white Jews' (refugees from the Inquisition) and concluded that they have been present in Malabar ,India, for 1700 years without intermarrying and preserving theracial features from the natives ! Nothing can be further from the truth . India has EIGHT Jewish groups of different races . . .

Liberty Net: July 2, 2011

http://3950.net/2011/07/liberty-net-july-2-2011/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

THERE IS MORE social and economic wisdom in a single session of the Liberty Net than can be found in a yearï¿½s worth of commercial television, as was amply proved this week. Our lack of independence on Independence Day was noted and deplored, but many creative ideas for restoring our freedom and self-determination were brought out and debated.

Hereï¿½s a brief summary of some of the topics covered this time on amateur radioï¿½s longest-running discussion net:

ï¿½ Isnï¿½t it interesting that, prior to the recent invasion of Libya and Dominique Strauss-Kahnï¿½s legal troubles, Strauss-Kahn had met with Qaddafi to discuss changes in the worldï¿½s monetary system? (34 minutes)

ï¿½ Isnï¿½t it also interesting that the woman who replaced Strauss-Kahn at the IMF has direct connections to Goldman Sachs and to the Chicago mafia that groomed Barack Obama for high office? (42 minutes)

ï¿½ Why does Fox News (which some wags are now calling Lox News) sometimes rail against ï¿½internationalist elitistsï¿½ when it is owned and controlled by the ultimate internationalist elitist, Rupert Murdoch? (55 minutes)

ï¿½ The labor monopoly possessed by Communist China ï¿½ a result of the fact that their workers cannot strike or say ï¿½Hell no, I wonï¿½t work under these conditionsï¿½ï¿½ ï¿½ is impoverishing White workers across the world. (1 hour 14 minutes)

ï¿½ When the run on the dollar begins, donï¿½t expect the FDIC to help you ï¿½ the funds simply arenï¿½t there. (1 hour 40 minutes)

ï¿½ Think that the price of gold canï¿½t keep going up? Think again: China only owns 1,100 tons of the metal now, but wants to buy at least 10,000 more. (1 hour 49 minutes)

ï¿½ Some American families are converting a substantial portion of their assets into physical gold ï¿½ and taking delivery of that gold in foreign countries, where it is placed in private lock boxes. The goal? To make sure that the illegal regime in Washington cannot steal it. (2 hours 2 minutes)

ï¿½ Why are the powers that be talking about eliminating the tight 60 Hz synchronization of the US power grid? Frequency differences between different parts of the Japanese power grid prevented power-sharing during the recent disaster there. (3 hours 1 minute)

Thanks to Marty, N2IRJ, youï¿½re able to listen to the Liberty Net right now on your computer here at http://3950.net/ ï¿½ or download the file and listen on your portable mp3 player. And N2SAG operates a live feed and chat during Net times that lets you make an end run around jammers and a fickle ionosphere.

Join in the discussion by checking in to the most exciting net on the amateur bands every Saturday night starting at 10PM Eastern Time!

Our thanks go to W1WCR for his hard work and courage in keeping this important part of the amateur radio service alive since 1974.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Still waiting for you to produce a cite where Hawaii published Obama's BC.

I'm with you on that. When I was on the dole I did courses, not because I had to but because I wanted to improve my qualifications and I did volunteer work. I didn't want to get paid for sitting on my arse doing nothing. Now luckily I have a job because I spent a few hours a day looking for work and it finally paid off. That's how it should be with everyone else on government handouts. Unless you have a disability you should have to be looking for work.

Why, when you walk into welfare, are you given ANYTHING BUT a job?

I would think the "welfare agency" would really be an "unemployment office" ... simply give people the help they need, a job, right?

Well, damn it JIM! You should get away from those type of people as quickly as you can! No matter what skin color, the right to free speech, suitable employment, suitable support for human survival should be equal -- just NO SPECIAL FAVORS CLASSIFICATIONS!

Did you just ask yourself, ever, why don't these people just help me with a job? Why didn't you tell them, "I don't want just some damn money! I want help getting my life on a stable level. I need a job. What is the matter with you people?"

I mean, what the hell are those people in welfare thinking? A person needing help needs stable, long term help. That means a job where they can support their obligations, medical, food, housing, clothing, transportation, etc.

How long has this stupidity been going on? They aren't helping anyone by just handing out money, they need to be handing out valid employment!

Actually there are a number of things, like:

1) Why does his registration number come after someone who's birth was registered several days after Obama's?
2) Why does his scan have a white halo around the lettering rather than showing the security document features as it should?
3) Why are the pixel sizes irregular, and why do some of those pixels not line up with the other pixels?

There, 3 questionable things about his BC, and ones which I bet you don't have a valid answer for.

Well Donald Trump changed his claim about the birth certificate declaring that his questioning made Obama get his birth certificate released to the media.
And guess what, Obama was born a US citizen....

End of claim.

If he had a real one, he wouldn't have had to have released a fraudulent photoshopped one which all credible experts will point out is an obvious fake ...

What war crime do you think was committed in that story?

>http://english.aljazeera.net/news/africa/2011/07/2011766657771381.html

"At least 11 people were killed and dozens more wounded on Tuesday in an artillery barrage launched by forces loyal to Libyan leader Muammar Gaddafi"

How is an action carried out by Gaddafi's forces a war crime committed by Barack Obama?

What war crime do you think was committed in that story?

Same story, same question.

>http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/africaandindianocean/libya/8585248/Nato-admits-

"A military missile site was the intended target of the strike but one weapon could not be accounted for, Nato said, admitting there may have been a weapons system failure. The air strike is thought to have been carried out by French jets."

Why is Barack Obama responsible for what French jets do or don't do?

Why is Barack Obama responsible for what Libyan government troops and rebels do or don't do?

Gadaffi had once referred to BHO as 'my son' ! Considering that insane relationship (since a lot of people have doubts about his real father) BHO is directly responsible for his 'fathers' evil deeds . Should be very obvious to the very simple creatures with limited cranial capacity . However, most of us will NEVER buy this nonsence . Period .

Speaking of Trump (the Republican's answer to Bozo the Clown)*, whatever happened to the 'bombshell' Trump was going to drop about the startling information his hired detectives "discovered"? Sort of interesting as to how that conveniently died on the vine.

* At least Bozo is honest about admitting he is a clown, more than you can say about Trump.

None of the other birthtard kookers here have been able to answer this, so let me give you a shot at providing a valid answer...

Why hasn't the R-E-P-U-B-L-I-C-A-N, C-O-N-S-E-R-V-A-T-I-V-E, anti-Obama
Wall Street Journal, with its fleet of investigative reporters and deep

Why does the Wall Street Journal say Obama IS a legitimate US citizen???

Maybe you could make a few bucks selling your phony "facts" above to the Wayyyyyyy back in the olden days, East of the Missy Sippy River, those mommas used to tell their chilun, Y'all boys and girls go round up them Cows and bring them back here and milk them.

That's how the names Cowboys and Cowgirls came about.The Stetson Hat was invented and developed by John Stetson at Dunns Falls,Missy Sippy.You almost never see anybody in Missy Sippy wearing Stetson Hats.
We taught those Cowboys and Cowgirls everything they know, and then some.

Cite.

Not questionable. It's Hawaii's system, the state have authenticated it. Case is closed.

False premise. Lack of cite to support your claims is duly noted.
There is nothing about the scan that is questionable to anyone who knows anything about pdf files.

Lack of cite noted. Lack of cite that anything of the sort would be

You have not yet raised a valid and supportable question. DISMISSED.

So it is your contention that in a scan of a document the PDF software would put a white halo around the lettering and remove the security document features?

After the music finishes (typically not the full song, but a specific edit for time) she starts with a header that identifies the recipient and tells how many groups will be sent.

She then sends the numbers. Each specific time slot uses either 5 figure (5f) or 4 figure (4f) groups. Within a given transmission the group size is all the same, ie, all 5f or 4f.

Each message is sent twice, with the term "I'll repeat that" in Korean between each message body.

The two repeats of the message body sound slightly different because the numbers groups are sent with differing rhythms', but it is indeed the exact same message sent twice.

It is not a suggestion, the song is Pangapsumnida.

Here is a video of a transmission received at my location in California
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=FIEL6Hilai8

Several different songs (more than 10 that I know of) are used as lead-in by V24, each song tied to a specific time/frequency combination and quite likely to a specific recipient. All songs that have so far been identified by name are North Korean in origin, although the station itself is South Korean. Most songs are used in more than one time/frequency slot.

Another reception, using a different song for lead-in

That page is a good source, unfortunately it is rather dated. Many of the frequencies listed for the South Korean station have changed over the years. The current list of active freqs is 4600, 4900, 5115, 5715, 6215, 6330, and 6730 kHz.

That is an article from last year, and for a period V24 had narrowed down its frequency usage, so that it was just down to those 4 frequencies, it is now up to the 7 frequencies I quoted above. It has used as many as 8 frequencies.

The station only uses one frequency at a time, there is no simulcast.

V24 has a sister CW (more correctly MCW, as it is sent in AM mode) station, called M94, that works on a sub-set of the V24 frequencies. At this time it only seems to be on 6330 kHz, but it has operated on other V24 freqs in the past.

YouTube vids of M94 on 5715 and 5115 kHz:

What is the issue? You have yet to establish that there is an issue here. Your mystification over Hawaii's numbering system does not create a crisis for actual people with actual brains, kook.

Cite what? YOU are the one who needs to cite, You cannot.

DISMISSED. Ignorance of simple PDF methods doesn't create an actual issue for people with actual brains.

All irrelevant to your stated claims. You have yet to show that any of this is unusual.

I await your cites to support your ludicrous brainless and ignorant claims.

Hint: We both know you will fail since the birth certificate is of course the real McCoy as Hawaii has certified. Case is closed, moran.

In EVERY word, I have EVERYthing. You poor poor kook, you have failed to realize that you cannot even coherently state a claim. You have no cites that establish any validity to your pure denial.

Denial is not a claim. It's just delusion. You suffer from an extreme case of it.

Indeed!

I have fully backed up everything and exposed the FACT that you have nothing. Hawaii says you're a nutbag. This is not even remotely in dispute. Your stupid ignorant statements about pdf files just show your cluelessness and desperation. You poor poor kook.

Digital radio is a loser. What is it now - ten years in and still it hasn't taken off. So much money spent , so little return.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Eduardo is an idiot. The business case for HD radio could not be weaker, as practically every person knowledgeable on the matter (and without an ax to grind) was saying years ago. Oddly, the only people who failed to see the handwriting on the wall were many of the posters in this group, who hastily gulped down Eduardo's kool aid as fast as he could pour it out. I'm still scratching my head over that one.

Do you have any idea about International Humanitarian Law?

From the International Committee of the Red Cross:
http://www.icrc.org/eng/war-and-law/conduct-hostilities/overview-conduct-of-hostilities.ht m

"The central principle of distinction runs through all the law relating to the conduct of hostilities. Indiscriminate military action is prohibited. All sides in a conflict must distinguish between legitimate military targets on the one hand and civilians and civilian objects on the other."

"Deliberately targeting civilians is a war crime. All sides must take measures to separate as far as possible military targets from population centres. While it is accepted that civilian casualties may be sustained in situations where military targets are attacked, both sides are required to take whatever measures possible to minimize injury and death among civilians, and damage to civilian objects."

Note!
"While it is accepted that civilian casualties may be sustained..."
and "... take whatever measures possible to minimize injury and death among civilians..."

Accepted.

Minimize.

To show a war crime has been committed you need to prove deliberate targeting of civilians, not just civilian deaths in warlike activities.

I'm sure we've been over this before.

Ok according to your definition these may not be war crimes, but it is still civilians killed because of Obama's decisions. He is almost as bad as Bush.

Where is the left protesting Obama the way they did to Bush? Why are they so quiet when these are going on?

It is the "football mentality", as long as "their team" is winning, any atrocities done can be overlooked in "winning the game."

Irrelevant. Your claim was "... he is a war criminal".

>and Obama should be impeached.

For what? For not stopping a war when you wanted it?

He is pulling troops back. Now! When it is possible to do it! Not when it fuckin' suits you.

>I don't care if it is Bush or Obama, war is morally wrong yet

Morally wrong? Possibly. It is not a war crime and you should stop falsely accusing people.

Learn the law!

Apply the law when required.

But don't post stupid statements...

Why is it the "French presidents fault"? Did he make the missile? Did he deliberately fool with its guidance system knowing that that would cause the missile to go off course and strike the wrong target? A civilian target?

You are apportioning blame without knowing the facts again!

Even if there was American involvement, killing civilians, in some circumstances, is not a war crime! And if it were a war crime committed by American soldiers, the president would not, unless directly ordering the event, be complicit.

Is it????

You have evidence that President Obama ordered those airstrikes personally and that he said "Target the civilians"?

Well, I'm sure the birthtards will say that the WSJ was (one or more of the following):

1 Paid off
2. Threatened by Obama's goons
3. Part of the conspiracy to cover up the BC "plot" in the first place.

All of which take the term "birthtard" to a whole new level of nuttery.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at
birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Hard for me to say....I have never been on the dole....well, until I reached 65 a few years ago. Then I got Social Security which I had paid into since 1951 and Medicare. Oh, wait......got a VA insured loan when I bought a home...paid for it in three years so I don't if that should count other than it was a lower interest rate than an FHA.

Interesting....I had some work done on my home in Florida. New decking around the pool and removing the California style wood on the exterior and replacing it with chunks of marble. The contractor was black, the folks who did the decking around the pool and all the digging were white.
The black contractor finished up the decor on the pool and worked with the white dudes and another black dude placing the marble and doing the front walk. All in all, a damn fine job in all respects. I even got an invite to a barbeque with babyback ribs at the contractor's house.

I've never done that, but I would assume that to be the case. My brother worked in the employment office here.

Some folks simply aren't viable in the workplace. One reason I suggested that training be available to make them so.

We have all that training here. One is called "Calworks", it keeps on training, training, training and then retraining, etc.

The only flaw in this system, there are no jobs, or else the jobs are already taken by illegal alien invaders, or in some cases, they trained them for a job which will NOT support the size of their family (my sister is employed in "training" these people, I know what I am talking about.)

In the final analysis, it eats up vast sums of money to allow, in the end, the state and CPS to take away children for the mind washing of the state ...

Now, they may, or may not, have similar in your particular, or any particular state, for that matter, people becoming more aware of the scams going on is the answer in getting everyone focused on REAL problems ...

Are you an idiot?

Dead horse? The fraudulent birth certificate scam of obama is a major crime. obama is the number one criminal in America, he should be taking top place in the FBIs' most wanted list.

Never in our history has such a crime been perpetrated on the Americans.
Never has such collusion of our public servants taken place to perpetrate crimes on Americans.

obama continues to make the guiness book of world records in the most criminal public servant in Americas history!

Dead horse, I THINK NOT. Brain dead morons such as you, YES!

But please, don't confuse the two!

No, my point was that black folk do offer up jobs and hire even white folks to do them. These guys all worked together on these types of jobs so it wasn't like running by the unemployment office to hire some day labor for a couple of days. Or did I read your ""these people" comment

Then it is being administered wrong. The training I am talking about was in fields where there are hiring opportunities. No sense training someone on how to get a horse to pull a plow if the only jobs open are with painting contractors.

Well, no, it's NOT curious. There IS a media outlet that says it is valid:

The Republican, conservative, Obama disliking, deep-pocketed with a fleet of investigative reporters media outlet known as the...Wall Street Journal.

Poor little Johnny KQQK -- wrong yet again.

Belief in false flag operations, perversion training in schools, bowing to criminal public servants, paying unjust/unneeded taxes, worshiping the rich elite, constructing a ruling class here, public molestations in transportation systems, false wars, taking of Constitutional/creator given rights, stopping free speech, etc., etc.

It is to the point where it is too laborious to list the evils,

What are you saying about your use of "these people"? Who are they?
Then when I give you an example of a black man hiring white folks (creating and giving jobs) you seemed to wish to shrug it off and say that they did it because they were on welfare and needed jobs. If that isn't what you meant, I apologize for talking it the wrong way. If I am

Israel Bans Boycotts Against the State
By ISABEL KERSHNER
Published: July 11, 2011

JERUSALEM — The Israeli Parliament on Monday passed contentious legislation that effectively bans any public call for a boycott against the state of Israel or its West Bank settlements, making such action a punishable offense.

Critics and civil rights groups denounced the new law as antidemocratic and a flagrant assault on the freedom of expression and protest. The law's defenders said it was a necessary tool in Israel's fight against what they called its global delegitimization.

Passage of the law followed a string of efforts in the rightist-dominated Parliament to promote legislation that is seen by the more liberal Israelis as an erosion of democratic values.

Some critics argued passage of the legislation against boycotts would further delegitimize Israel, which is facing increasing pressure over West Bank settlements that Palestinians regard as part of the territory for a future state. Continued construction in the settlements has been a major impediment in attempts to resume stalled peace talks.

The bill passed by 47 votes to 38. It relates to calls for economic, cultural or academic boycotts of the state, its institutions or any area under its control, a reference to occupied territories.

Offenders could face lawsuits and monetary penalties. Companies or organizations supporting a boycott could be disqualified from participating in bids for government work. Nonprofit organizations issuing boycott calls risk losing tax benefits.

The so-called Boycott Bill was sponsored by Zeev Elkin of the Likud, the conservative party led by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. Mr. Netanyahu was absent from the vote, as was the defense minister, Ehud Barak, who leads a small centrist faction in the governing coalition.

In an opinion issued earlier on Monday, the legal adviser of the Parliament, Eyal Yinon, determined that elements of the bill bordered on unconstitutionality and struck at the core of political freedom of expression. However, Attorney General Yehuda Weinstein gave the bill his approval.

The speaker of the Parliament, Reuven Rivlin of the Likud, tried to introduce moderations in the bill, but they were rejected. Mr. Rivlin abstained from the vote.

The Association for Civil Rights in Israel and other human rights organizations said they were preparing to challenge the law in the High Court of Justice. The association described the law as "an antidemocratic step, intended to create a chilling effect on civil society."

Ilan Gilon, a legislator from the leftist Meretz Party, said, "I do not know of anything that creates more delegitimization of Israel abroad than these laws."

Hagai El-Ad, the executive director of the Association for Civil Rights in Israel, and other opponents of the law have pointed out that Israelis had recently launched their first successful consumer boycott, bringing down the price of cottage cheese. "Why should Israeli citizens be allowed to boycott Israeli cottage cheese, as we have heard and seen in recent weeks, but be barred from boycotting the occupation?" he said in a recent statement.

Last year, Israeli theater artists refused to perform at a new cultural center in the urban settlement of Ariel and in other West Bank settlements, causing a public uproar. They were followed by scores of leftist Israeli academics, writers and intellectuals who said that they would not lecture at the center or in any of the settlements.

A movement of Palestinians and foreign supporters has stepped up calls for boycott, divestment and sanctions against Israel. Their campaigns have led to a number of cancellations by international artists.

Mr. Elkin, the sponsor of the legislation, said that its principal importance was "the fact that the calls to boycott the State of Israel increasingly have come from within our own midst, and that makes it hard to wage a battle against a boycott in the world."

Most Caucasians do not belong to the white race anyway . A great majority of them are militant radicals . Some of these are extremely violent .

Then how could you use the term when you admit you don't know what it means?

I mean until you know who the "white race" are, how can you state that most Caucasians do not belong to it?

I suppose I should simply accept this admission you're talking about things you don't understand and move on, but since I've asked maybe you can explain why you did so.

"These people" are always the people my text is speaking about. If talking about evil banksters, these people would refer to them. If talking about evil negros, these people would refer to them ...

I am still puzzled in why you told me that story, it has nothing to do with what I was speaking about and goes off on a tangent to some point you thought I was making ... uh, like, DUH DUDE!

The one which isn't indian, asian, negro, etc. and which cannot be classified under any other. However, you may not be able to afford the DNA test to confirm someone is caucasian and not of any other race ... perhaps the price will someday be so affordable you can buy a $10 test at a drug store ...

However, I think most just accept what their eyes tell them, generally.

'Caucasians' was a term mistakenly used by some European 'scientists' in the 19th century . In real life has absolutely NOTHING to do with the people inhabiting in the Caucus Montains region . Amongst the multitude of ethno-linguistic groups (at least 50-60 and possibly even greater ) there are Black Abkhazians . Is this the answer you are trying to obtain ?

And, an excellent reason to avoid such obfuscation and stick to the accepted definition in todays' world:

1: of or relating to the Caucasus or its inhabitants

2: of, constituting, or characteristic of a race of humankind native to Europe, North Africa, and southwest Asia and classified according to physical features ï¿½used especially in referring to persons of European descent having usually light skin pigmentation

Well, that would be difficult to substantiate, seeing as races have VERY DEFINING traits, IQ, behaviors, etc. associated with them ...

protests or calls for the president to be impeached. It's back to sleep,
"Who's going to win American Idol" or the super bowl?

Look at Australia: Tony Abbott is saying how bad the carbon tax is but the Responsible? Maybe.

Culpable? No.

>the same way Bush would have been if he had ordered them.

What does Bush have to do with anything? He's gone. Remember?

The US AND France AND the UK AND Italy AND christ knows who else in Europe is involved in air strikes in Libya.

Why aren't you railing against these others?

NATO is in there because Libyan civilians ASKED them to intervene.

Would you rather they had been killed by their own leadership back in April?

And the US didn't want to get involved. Does your memory not extend back to February? Washington Post:

Obama on Libya: Very little and very late
By Jennifer Rubin
After days of near-silence and inactivity the Obama administration took its first tentative steps against the murderous regime of Moammar Gaddafi.

He was being attacked for not doing anything?

You're weird!

What does God have to do with politics? Yes, thou shalt not lie is one of the 10 commandments but the definition of a lie is:

http://dictionary.reference.com/browse/lie
a false statement made with deliberate intent to deceive; an intentional untruth; a falsehood.
something intended or serving to convey a false impression; imposture: His flashy car was a lie that deceived no one.
an inaccurate or false statement.

I didn't intend on deceiving anyone as I truly believed it was a war crime.

they are just doing the best job they can do. I blame the politicians.

He did nothing because he didn't want to be involved. He wanted Europe to sort

So what? War is legal. Civilian deaths in war are legal. The French president is not responsible for deaths caused by faulty weapons that miss their targets. Unless you have evidence that he ordered deliberate targeting you have nothing.

people stand accused of them by you.

Uh... will you READ what I write?

I wrote "...the president would not, unless directly ordering the event, be complicit."

That MEANS if "he ordered those crimes to be committed" he would be complicit in those crimes.

Got any evidence of this order before you start making accusations?

>I don't blame the troops,
>they are just doing the best job they can do. I blame the politicians.

Blame the troops for what?

Read this slowly.

Civilian deaths in warlike activities are most often (not always) legal.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

I draw on others for what I state, believe, find, analyze, find to be a preponderance of evidence, etc:

THIS:
"The IQ distributions of other racial and ethnic groups in the United States are less well-studied. The Bell Curve (1994) stated that the average IQ of African Americans was 85, Latino 89, White 103, Asian 106, and Jews 113. Asians score relatively higher on visuospatial than on verbal subtests. The few Amerindian populations that have been systematically tested, including Arctic Natives, tend to score worse on average than white populations but better on average than black populations."

Special Bulletin 5 ARLX005
From ARRL Headquarters

To all radio amateurs

SB SPCL ARL ARLX005
ARLX005 Hurricane Watch Net Seeks New Members

The various organizations that assist the National Hurricane Center (NHC) in Miami are gearing up for what forecasters are predicting to be a very active storm season. One organization that assists the NHC is the Hurricane Watch Net (HWN). One of the functions of HWN is to provide on-the-ground, real-time weather data to the forecasters at the NHC. The HWN gets this weather data from Amateur Radio operators who volunteer their time to monitor data from their calibrated home weather stations and report that data to the HWN. To better assist the NHC, HWN Manager Kirk Harding, K6KAR, told the ARRL that the HWN is looking for new members.

"The Hurricane Watch Net relies on volunteer operators -- our members -- who serve as our net control stations," Harding said. "HWN members are hams who have above-average stations, are capable of effectively conducting HF net operations and are willing to commit their time to operating in support of the HWN's mission during Net activations." The HWN net operates on 14.325 MHz, so prospective members must be able to legally transmit on that frequency to participate.

Harding said that the HWN is looking for new members with stations that can effectively communicate with Central America and the Caribbean, Mexico and South Texas on the 20 meter band. "As we head into the 2011 hurricane season, we're looking for qualified amateurs who are located anywhere within North America or the Caribbean," he said. "We are also looking for bilingual hams. We recognize that some Latin American operators hesitate to check in and send reports to us if they aren't fluent in English, so we're also interested in hearing from hams who are fluent in both Spanish and English. When we're working storms that are either affecting or threatening areas where Spanish is the language of choice, we always try to have one or more bilingual HWN members on hand to help with reporting."

Harding explained that the Hurricane Watch Net is generally activated when a named Atlantic basin storm is within 300 miles of landfall. Hurricane season in the Atlantic Ocean runs from June 1-November 30, peaking from late August through September; the Pacific Ocean season runs from May 15-November 30. Of course, hurricanes may occur at any time of the year. National Weather Service's Climate Prediction Center predicts that the 2011 hurricane season will see above-average activity with 12-18 named storms, with 6-10 of those storms becoming hurricanes. Of these storms, three to six could develop into major hurricanes (Category 3, 4 or 5). The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) defines a normal hurricane season as having 11 named storms -- including six hurricanes -- with two becoming major hurricanes.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the Hurricane Watch Net, please visit the HWN website at http://www.hwn.org for further information.

If you mean they aren't insane enough to claim it is a valid birth certificate, you are quite correct.

But, you very inability to cite one expert claiming it is, is proof enough ...

IQ variations across time, race, and nationality: an artifact of differences in literacy skills.
Marks DF.
Source

Abstract

A body of data on IQ collected over 50 years has revealed that average population IQ varies across time, race, and nationality. An explanation for these differences may be that intelligence test performance requires literacy skills not present in all people to the same extent. In eight analyses, population mean full scale IQ and literacy scores yielded correlations ranging from .79 to .99. In cohort studies, significantly larger improvements in IQ occurred in the lower half of the IQ distribution, affecting the distribution variance and skewness in the predicted manner. In addition, three Verbal subscales on the WAIS show the largest Flynn effect sizes and all four Verbal subscales are among those showing the highest racial IQ differences. This pattern of findings supports the hypothesis that both secular and racial differences in intelligence test scores have an environmental explanation: secular and racial differences in IQ are an artifact of variation in literacy skills. These findings suggest that racial IQ distributions will converge if opportunities are equalized for different population groups to achieve the same high level of literacy skills. Social justice requires more effective implementation of policies and programs designed to eliminate inequities in IQ and literacy.

Please, if you have credible studies/tests/etc., produced by valid sources, post them here ... all valid data I have ever viewed is similar in its' findings.

The real problem is, since the age of political correctness, it is frowned upon to state the truth on the relationship of IQ to race ... indeed, there have always been those who have worked hard to keep such data hidden.

With IQ, it is something you are born with, or you are not, in a true and perfect IQ test.

Since IQ tests are NOT perfect, it is possible to change results by the intensive preparation of the individual/group/race participants, however, more than a two to three point spread is pretty much all you can achieve ... I worked in a college in the late 1990s' where such a study was done by the head of the engineering, math and computer sciences dept. All he ended up doing was confirming what other studies had already confirmed ... since he was under contract in relation to a grant, the results were never published ... the grant provider was the federal government ... you can read between the lines, or not, as you so choose.

Yes, but abortion is good for one thing, it points out the women who you don't want anything to do with. If they can kill their own child, their bond to you is never going to be that great ...

WOW! That place is a real get together of the sickest of the sickest, ain't it?

If you get a list of the attendees, you have a list, which is 90%+ accurate, of who needs to be eradicated from the face of the planet -- they are just too sick to ever be reformed.

Reminds me of a jack russell terrier I had. I had trained it to newspaper when we were on trips and I would be out of the hotel room for extended periods. Worked great and the dogs aim was excellent!

It'd bring me to tears if I had an e-reader back then, came back to the hotel room, and found the dog had crapped on my e-reader!

With the newspaper, I just balled it up and chucked it in the trash ...

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.
